Soundtracks to Life

Life has ups and downs. We experience the good and the bad every day, but the real challenge is how we deal with everything. No matter how great or horrible the day turns out to be, there is always one constant that makes it all a little easier - music. Whether it's a song from the radio that you have grown to love or a new obsession you play every chance you get, we can all admit the music is a large part of our lives.

Soundtracks to Life arose as the chosen theme early in the year, after the staff and editors had nearly run out of ideas; it stood out from all the rest. Although we don't all share a passion for the same genre of music, we can still appreciate the feeling that comes with hearing that one song that rings a little too true, or that the fact that your steering wheel always has a front row seat to your best moments as a self-made rockstar.

Music appeals to the emotions; it drags you along for the three-minute escape into the rhythm. So we invite you along for the ride as we re-introduce some of the oldies and combine them with some of the hits of 2007. Enjoy the lyrics, get lost in the new look of the book, and most importantly, reminisce.

Sound in Spirit

School spirit was alive and well on Friday the 13th. The unforgettable phrase, "Double Oh Seven" flooded the hallways as seniors proclaimed their superiority.

"I don't even like to participate in this school's events, but something about Spirit Week brought out the school spirited side of me," said senior Amber Galmetzer.

It all started off with a yawn on Get Up & Go Day. Students stumbled into school sporting their pj's and their slippers, and even an occasional stuffed animal could be found. Tuesday was a day to dress up like your best friend. Teachers and students dressed up as their favorite dynamic duos. Mr. Kilgore and Mr. Thorton, for example, dressed up as Batman and Robin to show their school spirit. Of course, every year there is a Wacky Wednesday which has no limits, allowing students to show off their creative side.

Each class separated into different themes for Thursday. Friends got together to dress up as 'American Idol' contestants, doctors, and interns from "Scrubs." On Friday, it was time for the pep rally. Each class wore their class colors, with the seniors in their togas. After harsh competition, the week came to an end with a close win by the junior class.

Seniors celebrate their last year at Battlefield by wearing togas and Burger King crowns, signifying their reign over the school.

Senior Terrence Carter suited in full senior regalia, grins for the camera after an amazing victory in the spirit contest. The seniors not only won the spirit contest but continued the trend with the best-decorated class hallway.

Juniors Tyler Bent, Scott Donelson, and Nick Cumba scream and cheer with their classmates in hopes to win the spirit stick for a second year in a row; they were beaten by the Senior class.

Scream Like You Mean It

The Battlefield bobcat's secret identity was well kept all year. Junior Christopher Bonatucci won the part of school mascot after trying out.

The tension was high and the spirit was strong. Only black, gray, and purple separated each class as they piled into the gym during sixth block on Friday, October 13th. The juniors, all dressed in purple shirts and covered in face paint, were seated next to the rival sophomore class that showed their pride by wearing all black. The freshmen, all in gray, were booed as they made their way to their section of the bleachers. Once everyone was seated, it was time for the seniors to make their grand entrance. The seniors entered the gym accompanied by a musical procession and chanted "Oh-Seven!" They then made a lap around the entire gym clad in white. After each sports team was recognized for their achievements, it was time for the true competition: the spirit competition. Cheers could be heard all throughout the school halls as the mascot went around the gym calling upon each class to scream and let out their mighty battle cries to take the title of most spirited class. Senior Kathryn Murphy exclaimed, "I loved the atmosphere of the pep rally; I wish we had more of them." As the events of the pep rally came to an end, the excitement did not die down.

Many students ran from the gym out to the parking lot, chanting the numbers of their respective grade levels. Everyone was getting pumped up for the big football game that would be later that night.

Students from each class returned to the school around 5 PM to put the finishing touches on their floats. Each float reflected a different theme that would be judged based on creativity. In the end, the judges declared the freshmen float to be the most creative. Directly after the parade, a multitude of students marched to the football stadium confident that Battlefield would win. The game started with Battlefield down and by half time the score was 20-0. In a state of despair, the players went to the locker room to get a pep talk by Coach Cox. As second half proceeded, something inside the players clicked. They put their heart into the second half and managed to make a close comeback with a score of 32-33. Although Battlefield was unable to capture a victory, the fans and players left with high spirits and anticipation for the Homecoming Dance that would take place the following evening.

It was a pep rally and a Homecoming Game not to be easily forgotten. The events facilitated a sense of pride amongst students and teachers alike. No doubt, some students went to bed that night with the Bobcat colors swirling behind their eyelids and dreams were drenched with the echoes of chants and cheers for their to-soon-to-be alma madre.

10- Lynn Lee and alumni Jacki Jung went into the light to sit and enjoy some punch.

11- Senior Louis Maiuri and alumni Jessica Ortega take a few minutes to relax after their boogie-down on the dance floor.

After a disappointing loss during the previous night's football game, students anxiously awaited the Homecoming Dance that would take place, for the first time, in the school's gym. The morning started early for those who were subjected to taking the SAT for the first or even the third time at various high schools. Once the five hour long test was out of the way, it was time to get down to business. Senior Megan Seagars commented, "It was stressful to take tests and then hurry back to get ready for Homecoming."

After the tedious morning, the festivities began. Girls of all ages could be found around Haymarket and Manassas getting their hair or nails done before dinner. Reservations for popular places such as Osaka, Bonefish, and even IHOP were booked early in the day with Battlefield students.

Once everyone made it through the coat check, they were able to see the school transformed into The Night Under the Stars. The open cafeteria was filled with tables where groups sat and ate surrounded by sparkling lights in the gym. The gym became the dance scene with the DJ, strobe lights, and a fog machine to create a memorable night.

1-Freshmen Will Scott, Rodica Lopez, Jennifer Bain, and David Aponte jammed to The Electric Slide. Students waited for their next move.

2-Mike Nkwanga took advantage of the last few minutes of the night to hype up the crowd.

3-Sophomores Colin Derby, Nick Brock, Parker Solomon, and Sarah Rupert anxiously make their way to the dance floor waiting for the rest to show up and step up their game.

4-Worn out from all of the excitement, students Nikki Decales and Sophomore Allison Kwak got a chance to chat while taking a break from dancing.

5-Seniors Mike Ampadu and Kacey Colvin couldn't help but smile knowing that it was their last Homecoming.

6-Shin Jang, Laura Sandler, and Keith Pederson thought the dance was so great that they high-fived each other while Panic at the Disco played.

aped Our Lives

These were the days of the Britney and K-Fed drama, Fergie's breakout from the Black Eyed Peas into a fresh solo style, and Christina Aguilera's reflection of her childhood problems in her new songs. These were the days of Hot 99.5 dancing its way out the windows on the way home from school, giving dirty looks at the passing car for having too much bass. The country listeners proudly blasted Tim McGraw and Keith Urban, while scene kids turned the knob up carelessly to Panic! at the Disco. Boys with needy ex girlfriends related to Hinder's Lips of while girls getting over break-ups screamed along to Carrie Underwood's Before He Cheats. Despite the morning announcements banning "cell phones, iPods, and other electronic devices" kids still managed to sneak those little white headphones into their ears.

We worked music into our every day lives as much as possible, be it in band class or chorus, Spanish class or English class. We constantly sought to expand our horizons with music on every level and enjoyed every minute of it. Even when we wanted to turn off the radio, we couldn't, realizing that we were no longer in control of the music - the

Words to Live By

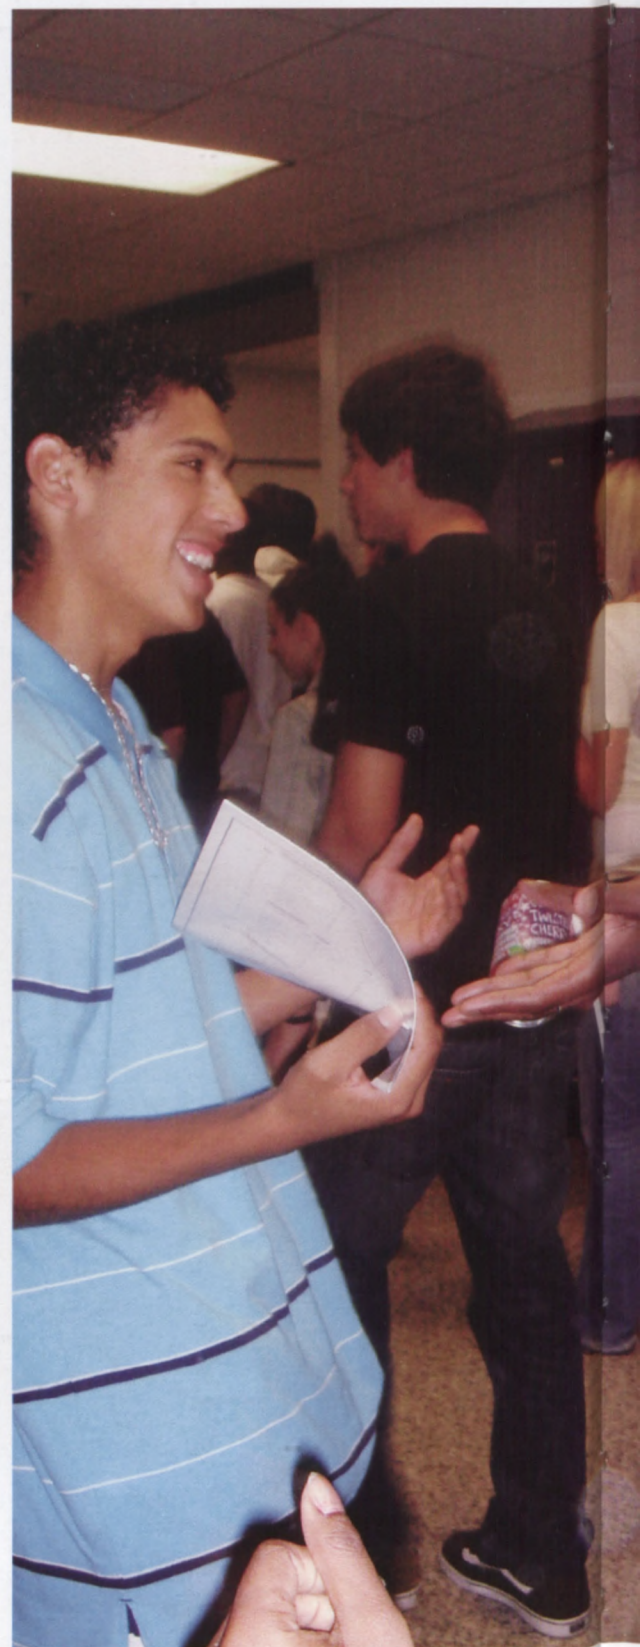

Words of wisdom were everywhere in school, whether it was the daily announcements, our agendas, or in the classroom. Inspiring words and quotations from famous people and our teachers influenced us to work hard in class and do better in life. Teachers hang posters in their classrooms that encourage us with phrases such as "You are who you choose to be." While aphorisms, like the ones written by Benjamin Franklin, can be interpreted many different ways and really make you think because sometimes they have no right or wrong answers. It all depends on how students interpret them.

Throughout history, famous words were said by people we've heard about, know nothing about, or who just remained anonymous. Even many years later, we still take their advice to help us with our daily lives. Albert Einstein once said, "The important thing is not to stop questioning." If we didn't question things in life, we would remain ignorant and never succeed. We even find great words in fictional movies such as in Star Wars where Yoda said, "Do or do not, there is no try." No matter where we look, there will always be words for us to live by, even if they came from each other.

Juniors Rachel Heffernan and Pamela Norkus tried to figure out what words they live by day after day.

Seniors Kevin Barrientos and Javion Stuart enjoyed living their lives on a school day afternoon.

Every student knows that high school can be pretty hard at times. Between the hard tests and the tormenting teachers, high school can be very intimidating for teenagers. As a result, many students turn to a few things that get them through the exhausting nine months of school. Whether it's coffee to help them stay awake during those boring lectures or silk underwear to help us feel comfortable while taking a long test, there is at least one thing that they rely on. Battlefield High School students share their obsessions that help them make it through the long, agonizing days of school. We took a poll of one hundred Battlefield students and the top six things they liked to do was listen to music, talk on their cell phones, go shopping, hang out wit friends, play video games, and of course check their myspace. Many students also confessed that they wake up extra early in the morning to make Starbucks runs before school. Energy drinks such as Red Bull or Rockstar give students that extra boost to make it through the rest of the day. After school, students meet up with their friends, grab some food, and simply talk. When it comes to tackling the staggering amount of homework teachers pile on students, a lot of students have a certain environment that allows them to be productive. Either the television has to be on, relaxing music, or nothing at all. When it comes to high school, the one thing that every student can rely is a friend. You can count on their support during the hard times and the good times.

Great achievements require not only dreams, but also

hard work

Each day brings about new situations, new people, and new problems, but sometimes it's the small things that matter the most in the end. It's how we react to these changes. It's how we deal with those rough days, and it's the goals we finally reached that make us proud of ourselves. High school is all about the changes, filled with tests of all kinds. Whether you ace the test or could have done better, you still have achieved something. Senior Patrick Boyd reflected back on his junior year saying, "I spent a good 3 months on 20-25 hours of sleep a schoolweek, but for it I received credit-worthy scores on 4 AP tests, got a 2200 on the SAT, and finished the year with a 4.6 GPA. It was horrible, the hardest thing I've ever done, but hopefully it's going to take me places."

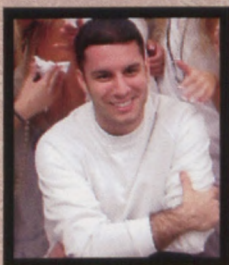

Others were fond of their achievements outside of the high school walls. Freshman Amanda Stanton commented, "I was the only one to train a horse that came to us. All he wanted to do was run and not listen when you rode him at first."

Students were not the only ones who shared memories. Mr. Kilgore commented, "The best answer is the path I have chosen for my life. Every morning I come to work knowing students are excited to see me, because they know I'm going to make them laugh and teach them something new."

"Overcoming my father's death and surviving leukemia all in

-Senior Georgia Stoyanov

Senior Amanda Ours comments, "Probably my greatest achievement was lettering in cheer-leading as a freshman."

Mr. Kilgore

Sophomore Rachel Patterson works hard on her math worksheet, determined to keep her grades up in hopes she can play for the spring soccer team.

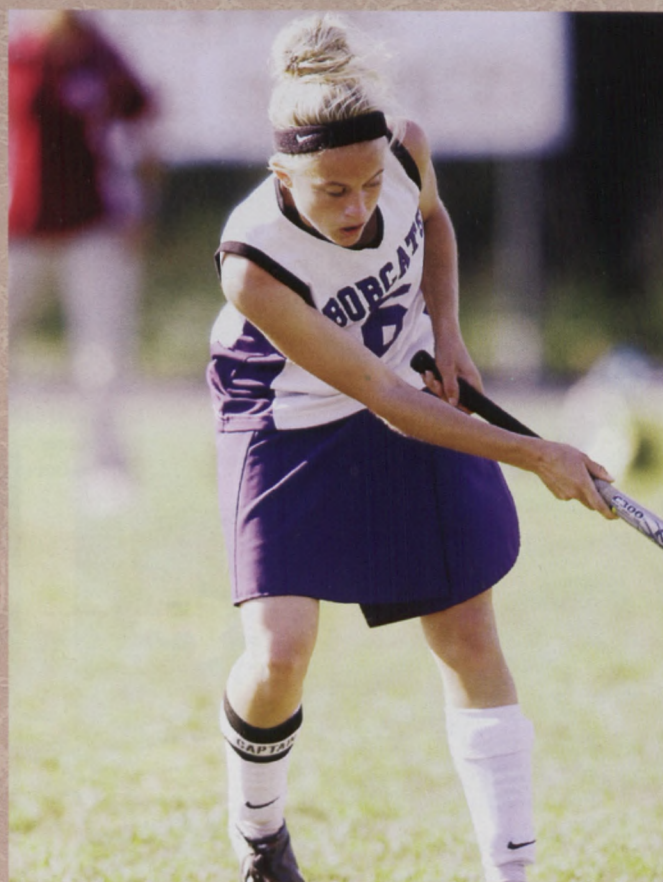

Junior Jesse Lloyd proudly states, 'My greatest achievement was reaching 4 foot 11,' standing next to 6 foot 3 junior Matt Crouse and 6 foot 2 senior David Herbek to compare their heights.

Taking a break from the intense Homecoming Game against Stonewall, junior Austin Tuell and senior Pat Beitzell keep an eye on the game. Tuell commented, 'Our greatest achievement so far was probably that we won more games than last year.'

Senior Chelsea Pfeiffer commented, 'Going to nationals for field hockey was definitely my greatest achievement.' Pfeiffer received attention from Longwood, Mary Washington, and Radford University after participating in the tournament.

Too Fast Too Furious

As a high schooler, nothing is more exciting than the day you get your license. Students were eager to finally drive to school instead of having to ride the big cheese wagon. No more having to run after the bus, no more having to sit next to the smelly kid, and no more tripping down the aisle. Whether the car was a make from 1990 or 2007, students took pride in their rides.

all I hear is your gear
I'm in love with my car,
gotta feel for my automobile*
- Queen

"I'm in love with My Car"

Senior Tim Chung showed off his car with arms wide open. 'I always like to have my car clean and shining. I just waxed it yesterday,' he said.

Seniors Sharon Burnham and Patrice Whilby liked to party in their cars. 'I have parties [in my car] on the way to school functions and parties on the way to parties,' Patrice told us with her friends, seniors Cierra Stokes and Erika Holland, as her music blasted. Sharon Burnham playfully displayed the party in her trunk.

'My dream is to be an import model' senior Chris Jun's pose implied, but he said he would much rather race with his car than model with it. Senior Tuan Levo took an extra leap to pose for the camera to show off his car. Some kids are embarrassed to drive around huge vans, but Tuan brags, 'More room, more girls.'

Senior John Haight sits on his car to reminisce. 'Last year my car broke down and my friend and I had to wait for two hours, but it hasn't broken down for almost half a year since.' He also described his car as his 'hoopy', a unique description for a unique car.

Seniors Kirk Biraschi, Yajaira Mejia, Glenn Arias, and Johnny Bonilla believed in carpooling. It saved gas and made car rides more enjoyable.

When in senior Laurie Benade's car, it is never a dull ride. Junior Cameron McKeehan and senior Jorge Liloy played around with her cool gadgets. 'The only things missing are my bongos,' said Laurie.

Senior Jonathan Clary stopped to show off his ride before football practice with teammate junior Jonathon Toe. Jonathan Clary took particular pride in his '1C3MAN' license plate.

Peering into the future

So, where have we been? Rather, where are we going? We all knew that as the years passed by, the majority of us ended up abandoning our childhood dreams of becoming an astronaut, the president, or a rock star for something a little more 'real world'. With the years, came a slow loss of naivety, and innocence, and a better grasp on reality. Our teachers, peers, and parents led us to realize that there was a real world out there with its own challenges and difficulties that must be faced each day. So as we left behind our far fetched dreams and we tied ourselves down to the less radical one, somehow the astronaut became a businessman and the president became a school teacher. Some, however, never lost sight of those seemingly impossible dreams. Senior Ana Lucca said, "I'll be a doctor in Spain and I will be happy and accomplished." So, as some students maintained their high hopes and vast dreams, others looked to the future with less ambitious intentions. Some students saw themselves attending community college in Northern Virginia and becoming a teacher, while others saw themselves working at the Goodyear by Target. No matter where we were headed, we knew that there was a different path for each of us to take where we could grow and explore ourselves and this world, be it in Gainesville or in Europe, the plethora of opportunities was constantly growing. Someone once said that anyone born in America was one of the luckiest people alive. With our hopes high and our plates chalked full of possibilities, we made our way into the world to mold our dreams into reality, one step at a time.

Graduation

We were a melting pot. We had Raiders, we had Tigers, and we even had a few Yellow Jackets, but we all became Bobcats the moment we stepped into the school building for the first time. The first year the school was opened we found ourselves meandering through the new, barely crowded hallways. We all lived through the first difficult years that came with the challenge of creating an identity for the student body. When we were finally seniors (the second graduating class ever), we became well adjusted to our new surroundings. We all walked across the same stage, ordered our cap and gowns, and shook the principal's hand as wise Bobcats. We made plans for our futures along side each other, and we stuck together at the pep rallies. Through the good and the bad, we finally accomplished our goals and graduated as a united force.

Julie Wood and Javion Stuart won 'Best Smile' with their wonderful pearly whites shining bright.

Greg Turner and Brendon Shaw won 'Attached at the Hip' because, well, they were.

What's Next?

When it came to making a decision for schools, the options weren't as simple as choosing what jeans to wear on a Tuesday morning. Most students had in mind a general group of schools that they were interested in, but there were many defining factors that complicated the process. In state or out of state? Private school or state school? Rural or Urban? Being a lone ranger or keeping a close friend by your side? Eventually everyone made their decisions and flinched as they hit the send button on their online application. "My school is Penn State because it is a really competitive school and I love the location," stated senior Kris Eisert. While many students had high hopes of getting accepted to Ivy League schools and other highly competitive universities such as UVA, others were content with NOVA for a more affordable and simple option.

Although Kris Eisert would love to go to Penn State he also said, "The price to stay in Virginia is so much cheaper, so I don't mind staying here. Plus Virginia schools are amazing." The high quality education and relatively affordable prices that come hand in hand with attending a Virginia school made it a number one choice.

Freshmen Fury!

We probably cut in front of them in the lunch line a few more times than necessary, and we most definitely scoffed them under our breath as we wedged ourselves between their circle of friends and the walls in the hallways.

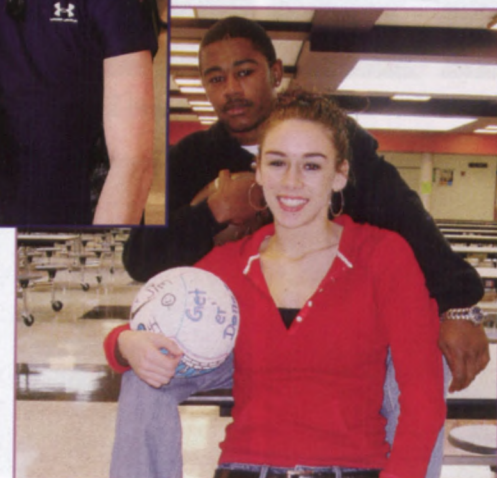

The freshmen. What an abundant group of students they were. With almost 700 kids in one class, we finally understood what crowded hallways really meant and what it felt like to hear they were out of apple juice at lunch. Along with the stork who dropped them off at the front doors at the start of the year, the negative connotation of 'freshmen' arrived too.

Were they really as bad as we thought? Kristen Thomas said, "I don't think freshmen are that bad, and I don't think people threatening them is right. It's funny because you can tell who the freshmen are once school starts but it doesn't take long for them to blend in with everyone else." Amanda Ours said, "I think it's just the fact that they overcrowd the hallways and they walk around with their heads up high because now they are big bad highschoolers. And yet without realizing it, we did the same thing too."

Jenny Galliher and Barak Holtslag won 'Most Likely to be a Superhero'.

Mike Nkwanga and Chrissy Davis won 'Most Likely to be seen in Sports Illustrated'.

Don't Stress Out!

Being a senior meant one more year of a bathroom passes, busy work, and waking up at the crack of dawn to beat Haymarket traffic. Simultaneously, being a senior meant planning for life and important business. Stress levels were high, but attention spans were low as senioritis began to work its way around the student body, taking down one student at a time. 202 seniors were surveyed on the lead stress causing aspect of being a senior. It was clear that college applications were causing the most headaches.

College Applications 23%

SAT's 12%

Parents 12%

Grades 11%

Relationships 11%

Other 9%

I Don't Stress 7%

All of the Above 15%

"You don't know stress until going home scares you to death," said Chris Jun who answered the 'parents' option on our survey. He got accepted into UVA early, but he still remained stressed and pressured by his parents. Katrina Kim said, 'After I go to college, I never want to hear anymore three letter acronyms ever again (SAT, GPA etc.).

Sierra Briant and John Rauda won 'Dressed to Kill'.

"Everybody's Free to Wear Sunscreen"

We mocked the freshmen we once were, appreciated the teachers we once had, and forgot most of the recycled advice our parents once gave us. As we continually attempted to embrace the fractions of time we weren't sitting wedged in a hard desk, we didn't realize how essential each moment of class was. The lessons weren't learned talking about verb conjugations or The Supreme Court. The lessons were learned each time a teacher shared an adolescent experience, learned in each off-track discussion. It's true what they say - high school is painful- it's real. We talked about our friends behind their backs, smiled to their faces. We ate lunch along side the valedictorian and the soon-to-be dropout. We admired the class clowns for their witty jokes. We got cut in front of next to Piedmont every morning waiting at that painfully long light. Although we spent most days looking forward to the weekend or our last period, the critical growing times existed in between it all. We grew every time the teacher called on unexpected slouchers who didn't know the answer. We grew every time we handed our English teacher three weeks of our lives in an essay. We grew every time we were judged for our differences and embraced for our similarities. We grew every bad hair day, every bathroom pass. Hopelessly naive, we walked onto that stage on Graduation Day a little more nervous than we had anticipated. Our parents did the best they could despite the curfews and the SAT nagging. Our friends did the best they could despite the fights and the jealousy. Our teachers did they best they could despite the snappy attitudes and the blank stares on Monday mornings. Most importantly, we did the best we could. Four years of the best and the worst. Maybe it was overrated. Maybe it couldn't be justified with words. Whatever it was, it would always be "highschool." The drama, the heartbreak, the temporary world between childhood and becoming our parents, so we embraced it.

My Anthem

"...is Love and Memories by O.A.R because it talks about the drama of highschool and relationships." -Lindsay Sheffield

"...is the song Burn One Down by Ben Harper. It's amazing. You are the person who you choose to be." -CJ Fridey

"....would probably be Eye of the Tiger by Survivor because it's all about keeping a keen eye on the future." -James Van Cleave

"...is Time Goes By by Keith Urban because we all waited for our senior year to come and now that it's here, it's flying by." - Kim Davis

"...is My Favorite Underwear by Liz Phair because it gives great ideas on how to deal with men and other life issues." -April Shettle-Magee

An Unexpected Holiday

Snow days: the answer to stress

Kelly Cass falls down while sledding.

With the cold weather came the promise of snow days. Students across the county got up early to check the news in hopes that they would see that faithful announcement flash across the bottom of the screen. Others checked the Prince William County website while the rest checked their phones for text messages from the county or from friends. With the unusually warm weather in December, most were unsure they would ever see a snow day. Fortunately by March they had accumulated more than in previous years. While some students preferred to stay inside next to the fire, others couldn't wait to get outside and brave the cold. Students enjoyed traditional winter activities as well as some creative new ones. From snow ball fights to snow man building, ice skating to snowboarding, they delighted in a plethora of winter past times. No matter how the students spent their day, the wintry mix succeeded in breaking the monotony of high school life.

Amanda Garland did some sledding in her backyard.

Rachel Robbins has some fun skiing over the week off.

An Unexpected Holiday

"On my snow day I went to my friend's house and had a marvelous time playing in the snow," commented Sarah Erbes with Sarah Balkcom.

"We had a blast ice racing and playing on the little kids playground." Sarah Balkcom with Katie Goode.

With the cold weather came the promise of snow days. Students across the county got up early to check the news in hopes that they would see that faithful announcement flash across the bottom of the screen. Others checked the Prince William County website while the rest checked their phones for text messages from the county or from friends. With the unusually warm weather in December, most were unsure they would ever see a snow day. Fortunately by March they had accumulated more than in previous years. While some students preferred to stay inside next to the fire, others couldn't wait to get outside and brave the cold. Students enjoyed traditional winter activities as well as some creative new ones. From snow ball fights to snow man building, ice skating to snowboarding, they delighted in a plethora of winter past times. No matter how the students spent their day, the wintery mix succeeded in breaking the monotony of high school life.

Julia Zewe spent her snow day sledding.

Katie Goode went to a nearby playground and played in the snow with friends.

"Falling in snow was fun, but the ice was painful," said Ross Forry.

*Oh the weather outside is frightful
But the fire is so delightful
And since we've no place to go
Let It Snow! Let It Snow! Let It Snow!*

District Bound

The season began with a round in the rain. In a pre-season match against defending state finalists, Chantilly High School, the golf team played exceptionally well. The Bobcats were able to tie the Chargers in the match play event and shot an all-time low score of 305.

The guys rolled through some early matches on a high note when they competed in pre-districts. During the match, the team fell short and finished with a tie for second with Culpeper, a few strokes behind Faquier. They took another stumble when they lost in the playoff to Culpeper. Unfortunately, their place dropped to third.

A regular season brought irregular events for the Golf team. The absence of seniors on the team took a toll on the team at districts. A lack of experience hurt their score as the team tumbled all the way to fourth place. To top it off, the starting junior Tyler Bent broke his wrist right before districts. "I was disappointed because I worked so hard during the season and I feel like I could have helped the team more during the District Championship." Despite the injuries and lack of seniority, the team still pulled through with many individual achievements.

Sophomore Jordan Pastor started off great in the pre-season but slowed down as the year went on while another sophomore Pierce Bishop kept his scores steady all year. Freshman Blake Forst performed pretty well in his first season with a few bumps along the road. While junior Eric Paris had to work for his spot. In the middle of the year, he had a hot streak that solidified a reasonable individual year. As Eric's streak ended, sophomore Justin Riley's began. At the end of the season, Riley surprised everyone by getting the first hole-in-one in Battlefield history. He steadied the Bobcats at the end of the regular season. According to Pierce Bishop, "With all our skill I expected more, especially from myself. I suppose all we can expect is, with the experience we gained, that next year we will win our district and get to states without a problem. I am going to step it up and so will everyone else."

When asked what he sees happening next year, Coach Tillman responded by saying, "It is very promising and I have more than high expectations." The Bobcat golfers are all looking forward to the 2007 season. They won't be losing any seniors, so the expectations are high. The team sees another district banner being raised high on the gym wall.

Overall what did you think of the season?

I never thought we reached our full potential after the first match, but the future definitely looks bright.

Key wins of the season were against Garfield, Forest Park, Culpeper, and Osbourn Park. "It was great that the boys were able to leave with a win for their last game, especially during the season's closer. the seniors," commented Head Coach Mark Cox

Several school records were set throughout the season. Senior Mike Nkwanga established his place in the record books for 1,000 yards rushing while senior Gregg Martino broke 1,000 yards passing. Junior Erik Patterson earned his place in school history with the first touchdown off of a catch as well as scoring a 95 yard touchdown off of a kickoff return

We're Coming Up

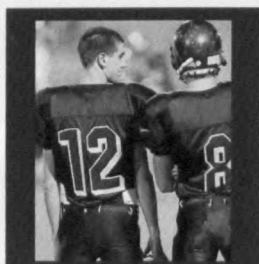

"We tried hard and did our best and that's all that we can do," said freshman Bo Revel.

"Our team is going to be great for years to come," said junior Nick Myers.

"The guys did their best and it really showed in the end," Mr. Ingram stated.

Two teams, two nearly-spotless seasons, too great a fall 2006 under the Thursday night lights. Both the Freshmen and JV Football Teams had seven wins and one loss to, once again, give Battlefield a wonderful opportunity for years to come.

Freshman Bo Revel lit up the skies for the freshmen team in the cool autumn weather. Touchdown after touchdown was the result of this freshman's young arm. On the JV team, a battering running back Gerald Khosa stood out as the star. Even with concussions, Khosa kept the Bobcats looking sharp all year.

Next year is up in the air. Sophomores Korbin Doss and John White had promising seasons splitting time at quarterback on JV. Yet, the performance of Bo Revel cannot be overlooked even if he was only a freshman. So, only a long, hot summer and another autumn until the Haymarket skies glow from the Thursday night lights.

The JV offensive line stands ready in their three-point stances. The quarterbacks took signals from their linemen who looked for weaknesses in their opponent's defense.

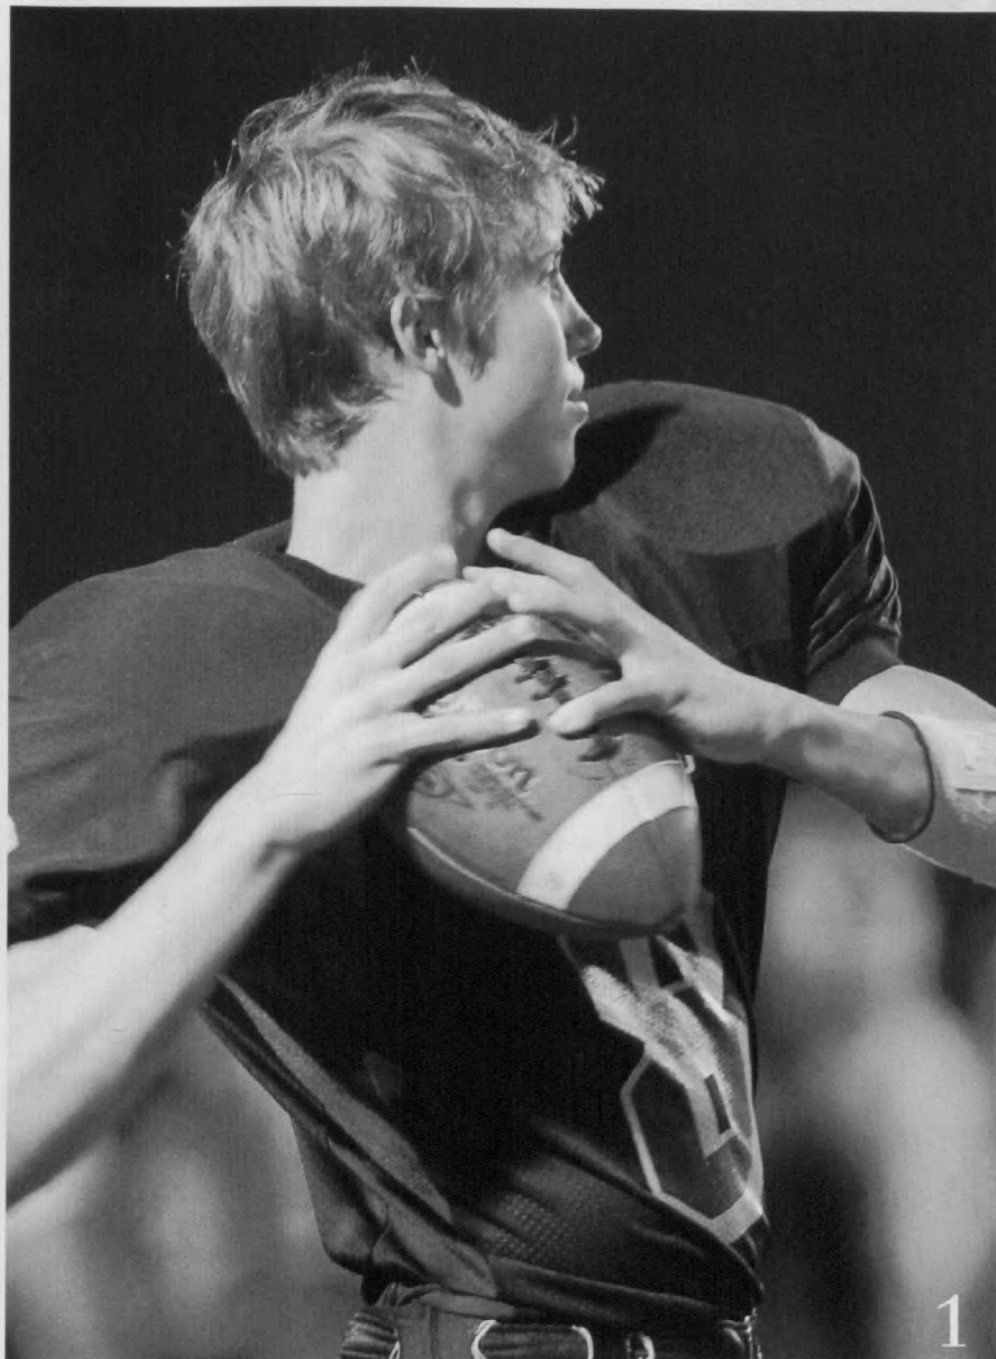

"We came together as one and it made a difference," noted sophomore Cory Turner.

"Our team stepped up and had a great season," said freshman Bryan Innes.

"Back in August I was nervous because I had never played before, but by the end of October I had scored and started as a forward for the team."

With the sun beating down on their backs, the Field Hockey team began their season in the heat of August. Coach Power had a rigorous conditioning workout planned for the team, which would challenge their endurance as well as their skill level.

"It is one of those things that in the beginning you're like, 'Is it worth it? Is this really helping us?' Then when we played our first game against Garfield and won and it made it all worthwhile," said sophomore Taylor Donelson. The team stepped it up and won more games than they ever had before. Seniors Chelsea Pfeiffer, Ashley Peyton, and junior Anna Bruno led the team as captains. Together they organized events such as team dinners and the carwash fundraiser.

"We made over 900 dollars during the carwash. One guy even gave us 100 dollars just for washing his truck! We ended up being able to get shorts, two t-shirts, sweats, and practice jerseys for everyone. It was a huge success," said sophomore Kayla Shivers.

The teamwork and the time spent together off the field was reflected during game time. Passing, driving, and dodging improved, as well as all other areas of play. Many teams were taken by surprise when they saw how much the team had improved. The girls constantly put on the pressure and ended up being the team to beat.

Tryouts were greuling. They started late in the summer and the season ran through November. The girls practiced everything from serves to volleys with noticeable improvement throughout the season. 11 wins and 9 loses. In the end, the team made it to the Cedar Run Districts and performed well.

Seniors Sidney Harbold and Chrissy Davis gave it all they had in hopes of finishing their last year in high school on a positive note. Sidney and Chrissy made senior night memorable when they were introduced, accompanied by their parents, and given flowers. That night, they had a great game and beat Culpeper.

The team captains for the year were senior Sidney Harbold and junior Christine Mihelcic.

They both agreed that everyone got along and worked together, practicing long hours to make the team click. Most players agreed that the team was tight-knit and everyone enjoyed the season.

Sidney Harbold on the White Division won the Ukrop's Volleyball Showcase and was later contacted by the coach of her top choice school for college. She planned to play in college and has been a sensation so far.

Junior Christine Mihelcic said, "Cookies are my fuel to life and volleyball," and added that that was her method to prepare for the games ahead. The year was full of victory and fun for the varsity volleyball girls.

With the leadership of freshman Alyssa Caudle, captain of the Junior Varsity Team, the team give their all. Coach Davis commented, "When the season started, it took a little bit of time to find a winning combination on the court. Once they started to have faith in the player next to them, the team started to win consistently." The girls finished with 10 wins and 6 losses. Sophomore Jessica Jacobson said, "The best thing about JV Volleyball was that we all became a tight family and when someone was down we encouraged them to get up."

Freshman Caroline Hong led the Freshman Volleyball Team as captain. The season had a rocky start because of its lack of coaching staff, however with its new coach, Coach Kilgore, the season really kicked off. The girls put in a lot of effort and determination which was displayed in their competitive games. Coach Kilgore said, "When asked what I knew about volleyball, the only two things I could say were 'the ball is white and it goes over the net.' I was introduced to the girls the day before our first game, and I knew then how much fun the season was going to be. I had an amazing group of young ladies, and I can't wait to coach again next season."

"The best race ever was Octoberfest because we had to run/swim through all the mud."

Battlefield runners brought competition back to the course during their 2006 Cross Country season. The team increased in size with the additions of new faces, reaching a number of 16 girls and 27 boys.

Both teams did outstanding throughout the season and achieved many great accomplishments. At the Stonewall Jackson Invitational in September, Battlefield won the meet and brought home two trophies and several medals. The following weekend, the Girls Varsity Team won second place in their 5K race at Wendy's Invitational in Charlottesville, NC with junior Elizabeth Walls winning the race and bringing home gold for Battlefield. The Cross Country Team members became close throughout the season and many new friendships were formed. While the girls ran in North Carolina, the boys ran at home in the Octoberfest meet.

The kickoff of the season was the team's annual trip to King's Dominion for team bonding. Sophomore Sarah Balkcom remarked, 'Cross Country is a great sport to be a part of because it's like being in a big family!"

The girls trip to North Carolina also strengthened their friendships.

Senior captain Bobby Herold finished 8th place at districts and junior Alex Strittmater placed 7th at districts. The boys' team finished 2nd at districts.

Overall, the boys' team ended their great season in 8th place at regionals in Charlottesville, Virginia.

The girls' team placed 3rd at districts. They also finished strong in 9th place at regionals with junior Elizabeth Walls placing 12th at regionals. She was the only female runner to make it to states for Battlefield.

"After being in the State Finals, I've been motivated to work harder and be a state champion."

In his first year as head coach, Mr. Tommy O'Neill has pushed Battlefield's wrestling program to the next level. With two returning seniors, Chris Beitel and Gregg Martino, the team was well on its way to a competitive season. Consisting of 25 players total, the team was split into Varsity and Junior Varsity squads. With a variety of wrestlers on the team, the Bobcats were able to field a wrestler in each of the fourteen weight classes.

Even though the teams were technically separated, they practiced as one. Everyone works under head coach O'Neill and assistant coaches Mr. Foreman and Mr. Bowman. Compared to past years, the team has become more oriented, taking ownership for their accomplishments, according to the coaching staff.

With four overnight tournaments ranging from different counties in Virginia and Pennsylvania, the team was able to come together through tough times they faced in the season. Junior David Guzdowski said, "One of the best feelings is when your teammates all congratulate you on a match."

The Bobcats were proud to announce they brought home their first trophy for third place in the PWC Invitational. Senior Gregg Martino placed 4th at the state tournament and sophomore Beau Martino placed 5th.

The Varsity Basketball Team started out the season two and zero winning the John Marshall Tipoff Tournament, the best start the program has ever had. Senior guard Ray Chambers was voted Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

The season had its ups and downs. Mid season the team struck a losing streak, but bounced back winning five games in a row just before entering the District Tournament.

to Fauquier.

The team fought hard for three quarters but came up short in the end. Chambers led the team emotionally as well as in points on the scoreboard. He led the entire region in scoring finishing the season with 23.9 points per game.

Other key players included senior guard Chris Holt, senior forward Brendon Shaw, senior forward Garrison Hughes, and senior guard Greg Turner. The team was helped by some younger players including juniors Tyler Bent, Bryant Osei, Shunn Simkins, and sophomore Dion Romeo. Overall, the team ended 10 and 13. This season showed improvement over last year's five victory season.

Beads of sweat dripped down their faces as the crowd cheered and shouted their favorite player's names. The pressure was on as they took on their rival, Osbourn. Junior Melissa Shaver described the game, "Even as the manager I felt the greatest adrenaline rush. I had never seen so many people at a game and excited to watch them play. They played their best and I knew they would not let us down."

The game became more and more intense as the clock counted down. This girls became extremely aggressive and with each foul that was called, it only made the girls want to win even more. The Bobcats were pushing ahead and the Eagles slowly gave up. The last few seconds counted down and everyone was on edge. The buzzer finally rang and the Bobcats defeated the Eagles after the all night battle. The close game ended with a score of 46-45. For weeks the school talked about how amazing the girls played. Their skills blew people's minds and they became the team that everyone wanted to defeat. The girls were on fire and no one was putting them out. They stayed on top for the best of the season. Assistant coach Mr. Davis commented, "This was postively our most successful season. We achieved most of our goals and placed third in the district against some of the best teams."

For the rest of the season every game was packed full of school spirited students, friends, and families. No one would ever forget the lady Bobcats and they had definitely left a mark on Battlefield.

BATTLEFIELD BALLERS

The JV basketball team had many stars that arose from the undefeated freshmen season last year. This year the Bobcats were successful and many sophomore starters led the way, Jason Augustosky, Andy Lim, and Jon Thornton. Sophomore Jason Augustosky said, "This season was fun staying together with all my teammates from the freshmen team last year after our excellent season." The team had great chemistry on the court because they had already played with each other the year before. The biggest surprise of the season was when 5'5" sophomore Andy Lim dunked during a game in front of the home crowd. Sophomore Andy Lim said, "It was one of the best feelings because no one expects a dunk in a game especially from a shorter player." The boys worked hard from November, to the middle of February, when the season ended. Coach Simpkins and Coach Bilko, enjoyed coaching the team because they connected on the basketball court with the players.

The freshmen team had many strong wins, especially in January against Culpeper High School. Despite the teams small size they played with a lot of heart and had great on court communication since most of the players were on the middle school basketball team together. Freshman Beau Rebel said, "This year was a lot of fun to play, mostly because my team got along really well. I think we have improved individually and as a team. I am really excited to see how well we play next year."

"I have had a lot of fun cheering these past three years for BHS. I'm going to miss all the girls when I leave because we all have become really close these past couple of years."

The season began much earlier this time around, with tryouts at the end of last school year. The team was comprised of mostly returning members with two new freshmen to complete the roster. The girls got right to work with NCA camp in August. As in previous years, the Varsity Cheerleaders received a number of camp honors including Champion Chant and Top Team. Some of the girls received the very prestigious camp honor of being named NCA All-Americans. Junior captain Lauren Butler was named NCA Top-Gun jumper for exhibiting advanced skill level in her jumps. Coach Tabatha Wolfe said, "Im very proud of the girls - they never cease to amaze me!"

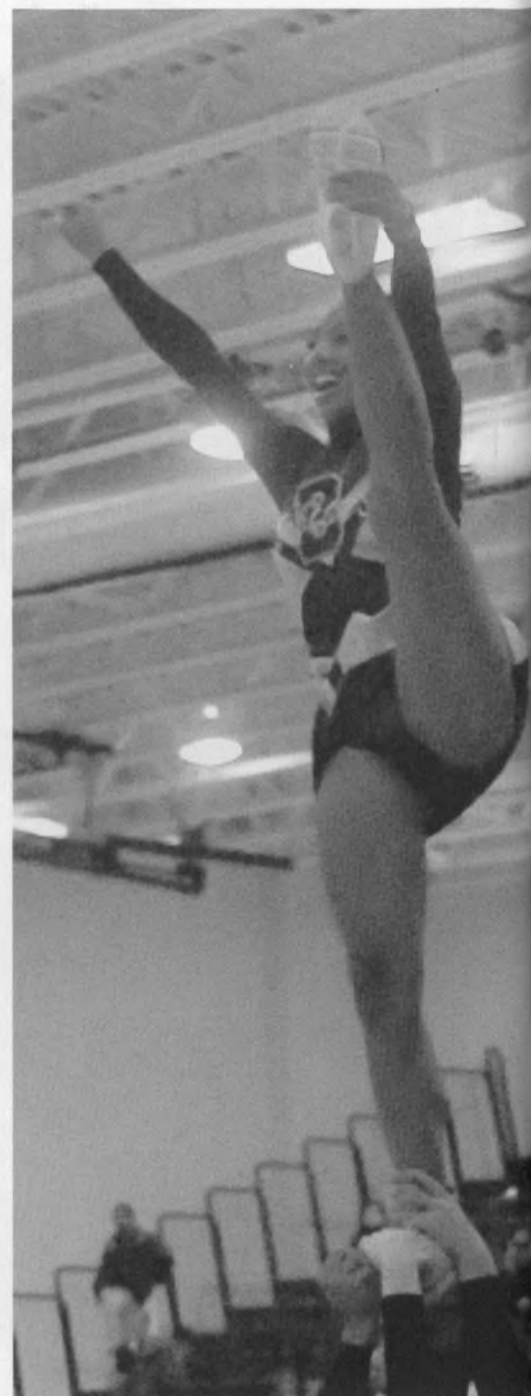

After camp the team began to work on their competition routine, practicing 4 days a week and from 7am to 2pm on Saturdays. "It was really stressful to practice so much, but in the end it was worth it," said junior Samantha Plott.

The captains for the year were seniors Laura Massey and Kendra Dominick, along with junior Lauren Butler. Senior Lauren Brewer said, "I think this was my favorite cheering year because everyone was so close and got along so well. Plus, we did really well at competition. I can't wait to see how far these girls go in the future."

Pride and Spirit

History teacher and Freshmen coach Ms. Minor said, 'I was so proud to be the girls' first year coach.'

JV Cheerleading Coach Mrs. Hart said, 'The girls did so well at competition this year. We got 3rd place!'

Juniors Kelsey Treague and Kate Houser were this year's Junior Varsity captains.

Freshman Cheerleading captain Diamond Walker said, 'Without cheerleaders it is just a game.'

Freshman cheerleader Laura Sandtner said, 'We did great this year and learned a lot.'

The season began in March of last year at tryouts when the girls tried their best to impress the judges with their cheers, chants, jumps, and dances. The work did not stop there. Over the summer, the girls held a car wash in order to raise money for the bus which the JV and Varsity squads would take to cheer camp in July. At NCA Cheer Camp the squads learned new chants, cheers, dances, and improved their stunting. JV captain and junior Kelsey Treague said, 'Camp was so much fun. It was a great chance for the squads to bond.'

Once back from camp the girls got to work learning even more chants and cheers for the long season that included cheering for both football season and basketball season. Although the Freshmen Squad and a few cheerleaders on the JV Squad were new to Battlefield, the girls worked together to make sure everyone was ready for their first game.

Games were the least of worries for the JV Squad, as they were also to compete in the Potomac Invationals. The girls spent numerous hours perfecting their routine with Coach Hart and Varsity captain and junior, Lauren Butler, all the while cheering the boys on at every home football game. Their hardwork and dedication finally paid off when they won 3rd place at competition.

The Freshmen Squad had many achievements of their own. By the end of the season they improved their jumps, motions, and stunting, making them ready for next year's tryouts when they will have to battle it out for spots on the JV and Varsity Squads and experience competitive cheerleading.

"Dance team has really progressed over the years. I had a lot of fun with the team and I enjoyed being their captain."

Who could forget the way the Dance Team blew away the crowd at the Pep Rally with their eye catching moves or the way they stole 3rd place at the PWC Dance Championships? This talented team knew the true meaning of dedication. They challenged themselves this year, practicing and working hard to ensure their success. Team captains, seniors Chris Pow and Kim Davis, prepared the team throughout the year, guiding them through many challenges. The dance team isn't just about dancing; it's about friendship and a bonding that helped them conquer the toughest competitions. The dancers loved practice, not only because they spent time perfecting their moves, but also because it was a time of hanging out and enjoying themselves. Many of the girls considered themselves one big family. "We have a dance team because one family couldn't handle 17 sisters and a brother who are this much fun. Every practice is full of laughter and we wouldn't trade each other for anything!" sophomore Sarah Ruppert mentioned. Although the team was constantly committed to practicing their routine, they did share moments of fun during sleepovers and parties. The times they spent together brought the team closer than ever. "Everyone on the team is so unique and what brings us together is our love for dance. We are like one big happy dancing family," commented junior Lauren Joseph. Their bond allowed the Dance Team to support each other enough to conquer the toughest competitors together to make the 2006-2007 school year one they wouldn't forget.

Another season of Battlefield Swimming had begun, and the swimmers came to tryouts with enthusiasm and energy. Tryouts consisted of two days of time trials that would determine who made the team and who did not. The final team consisted of about 60 athletes.

The swim team practiced everyday at the Freedom Center for an hour and a half. The first half hour consisted of dryland, which was to help the athletes get stronger. Swimmers did hundreds of crunches, push-ups, lunges, rows, leg-lifts, and jumping-jacks. After 30 minutes of training, the swimmers got in the pool to workout for another hour. "Usually we warm up, then do one or two long sets, a couple short sets, and then work on starts or sprints the last couple minutes of practice," said freshman Meghan Johnson.

Even though swimming is an individual sport, swimmers made sure they supported and cheered on their teammates in the water. A junior on the Swim Team, Amy VanBuskirk said, "Swim Team this year has been amazing. I love being part of the team because I know my individual effort has had a big effect on the team as a whole. I know that we're all going to come together and do well at Districts."

Finishing second in the relay carnival at the very beginning of the season, the Bobcats knew it would be a great year. As the season progressed, times continued to drop and many team records were broken. The boys ended up placing third and the girls placed second in district.

Running is not simply something that someone does, it is a way of life. This concept is especially true to the athletes on the Indoor Track Team. These athletes not only spent most of their time at practices each week to improve their running or field events, but they also trained in their free time. When junior Jessica Silver was asked to describe Indoor Track she said, "Fun."

Throughout the season the team came together to push one another at practices and cheer on teammates in races. As a whole, the team showed definite improvement from start to end.

With the help of challenging workouts, the team got into shape and quickly saw better results in their events at their weekly meets. Three long distance runners, seniors Bobby Herold, Rob Bell, and junior Rachel Satterwhite went as far as competing outside school track meets and running in a half marathon, and sophomore Diana Budreika competed in a local 10 K. race. The team performed well at their district meet in mid-February. The boys team placed first winning the district title and the girls team placed second.

The Boys Varsity Tennis team seemed to show some brilliance in their third year. A quick start and splendid underclassmen players seemed to guarantee a great season.

Tryouts were quite difficult this year. There was an eclectic blend of athletes and the decisions as to who to keep and who to let go must have been beyond difficult. Additionally, huge amounts of snow just before tryouts kept the prospective players off the courts. Actually, Coach Davis sent the boys to the track. One prospective team member said, "Are you kidding? I can't run a mile!" Yet, it all changed when the players finally got on the court.

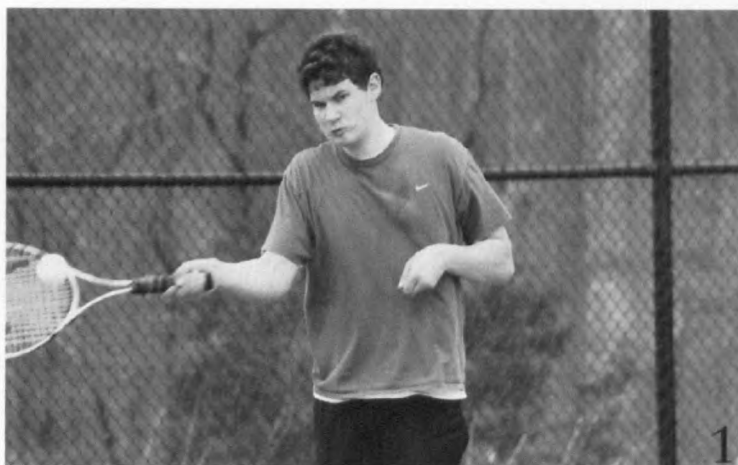

The Varsity Bobcats really gelled on the court this year. Junior Brandon McLaughlin started 3 and 1 in his singles matches and freshman Brandon Malley also began his season on a strong, undefeated streak. Sophomores Peter Jones and Justin Riley showed their skills on the court with brilliant displays in all their matches. Alex Mann, a junior, continued to excel with the racquet as he had two plus years on the Varsity Tennis team. Seniors Tuan LeVo and Jinki Choi were also heavy contributors on the court.

As the season progressed, the Boys Tennis team improved drastically. Dedication and practice proved their worth. They represented Battlefield well both on and off the court with their strong forehands, accurate backhands, and sportsmanship. No doubt Battlefield's boys will continue to be stiff competition in the seasons to come.

With the previous year's victory the Girl's Tennis Team had high expectations for their season. The girls worked very hard during practices, which occurred at school every day. "The team has worked hard for three years and it really paid off this season."

After ending last season with a heartbreaking loss against Garfield the varsity boys soccer team was determined to make the year one to talk about. They started the season with five straight wins. The team was fortunate enough to have twelve returning players along with many new comers. Senior captains Brenden Shaffer and Zach Ward along with junior Joey Moss worked hard to led the boys and keep them all in line.

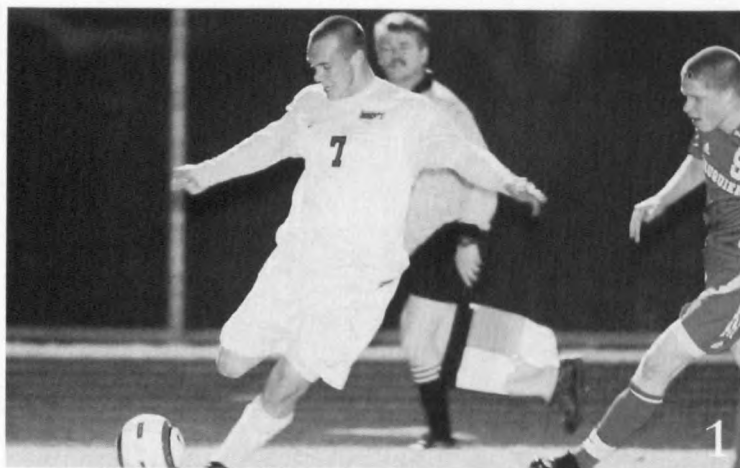

At the end of March the boys traveled to Virginia Beach for the afternoon to play Kellem. They returned home with a victory of 1-0. This was the first big test of the season for the season. Every afternoon at practice the boys spent their time scrimmaging and running through a series of drills. Time was also spent working on assists, back tackles, bicycle kicks and scoring goals.

Both of the Smith brother's returned as coaches for another year. Their goal was to take the team to states. The hard work and dedication on and off the field was bound to pay off with their determination for victory.

At the beginning of the season many thought the girls varsity soccer team would struggle without the "Fab Four" seniors from the previous year. Their first game against Mountain View was tough, but they pulled off a one to one tie. They had not proved they could do it yet.

When asked about the season turn out without the "Fab Four" junior Jessye Jewel commented, "Our four seniors last year had a huge impact on our team, but a team is more than just four people. We have four freshmen added this year and they have played an important role in our success as well as our returning players."

Next the girls set off for Kellam High school in Virginia Beach. They endured nine hours on the bus to travel there and back. Kellam has won states two years in a row, but they were impressed with the teams effort. While describing the game against Kellam freshman Sahar Aflaki said, "I was anxious and nervous when we first got to the field and saw the height of the girls as well as their skills. When I started playing I went all out and got into every hard tackle, which landed me in Crutches for two weeks but it was well worth it."

Proving their strength the four new freshmen teammates Sahar Aflaki, Katie Ostroveky, Emily Heston, and Abby Lee put up a strong defense against the Kellam Knights. Although extremely short compared to the Kellam girls, defender Abby Lee did not allow that to intimidate her, instead she was fiery with her speed.

Even though the freshmen were a huge asset to the team, they could not have done it without their teammates. Throughout the rest of the season the girls bonded together. Their team work and talent led them to many achievements, which seem to amaze their fans.

Captain junior Valerie Calvano led the team to victory every week. She was the center of the defense and she kept the team calm and collected.

Junior Susan Roberts was the comedian of the soccer team. She kept the girls up on their toes with laughter and enthusiasm.

Sophomore Rachel Patterson was one of the returning players for the JV team. Patterson played defense as one of the team's enforcers.

Coach Marshall commented, "We have 13 freshmen this year and a core of juniors that made the team highly skilled. It was a fantastic season."

The season began with 4 days of try-outs which had to be indoors because of the snow. Once the teams had began to start, there were many problems with scheduling. The school decided to send the JV girls and boys to Bull Run Middle School for practices. The soccer team got off to a rough start, the first two scrimmages were cancelled due to uncooperative weather. On Wednesday, March 14, 2007, the JV girls had their first game of the season. The lady Bobcats came out strong and ready to play. They started out with the normal routine, warm-up, little possession games, and then a pep talk from Coach Marshall. Everyone was siked especially the 14 freshmen that were on the team. Freshman Kelsey Burden was extremely excited because she scored the first and only two goals of the game.

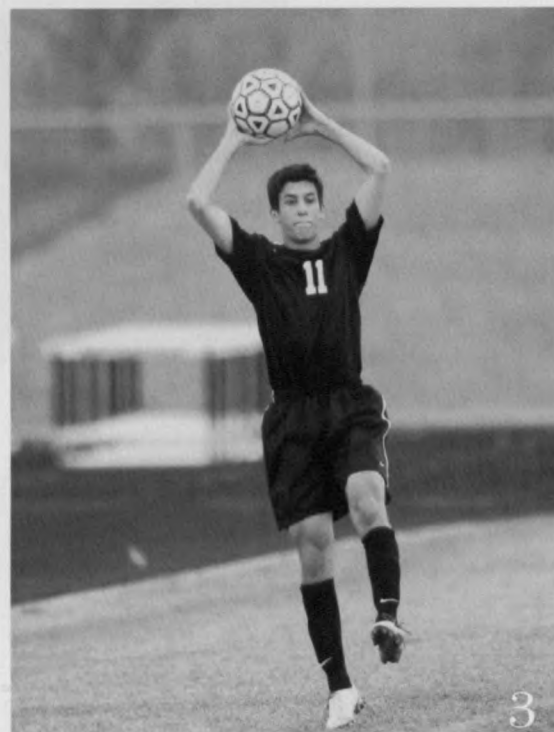

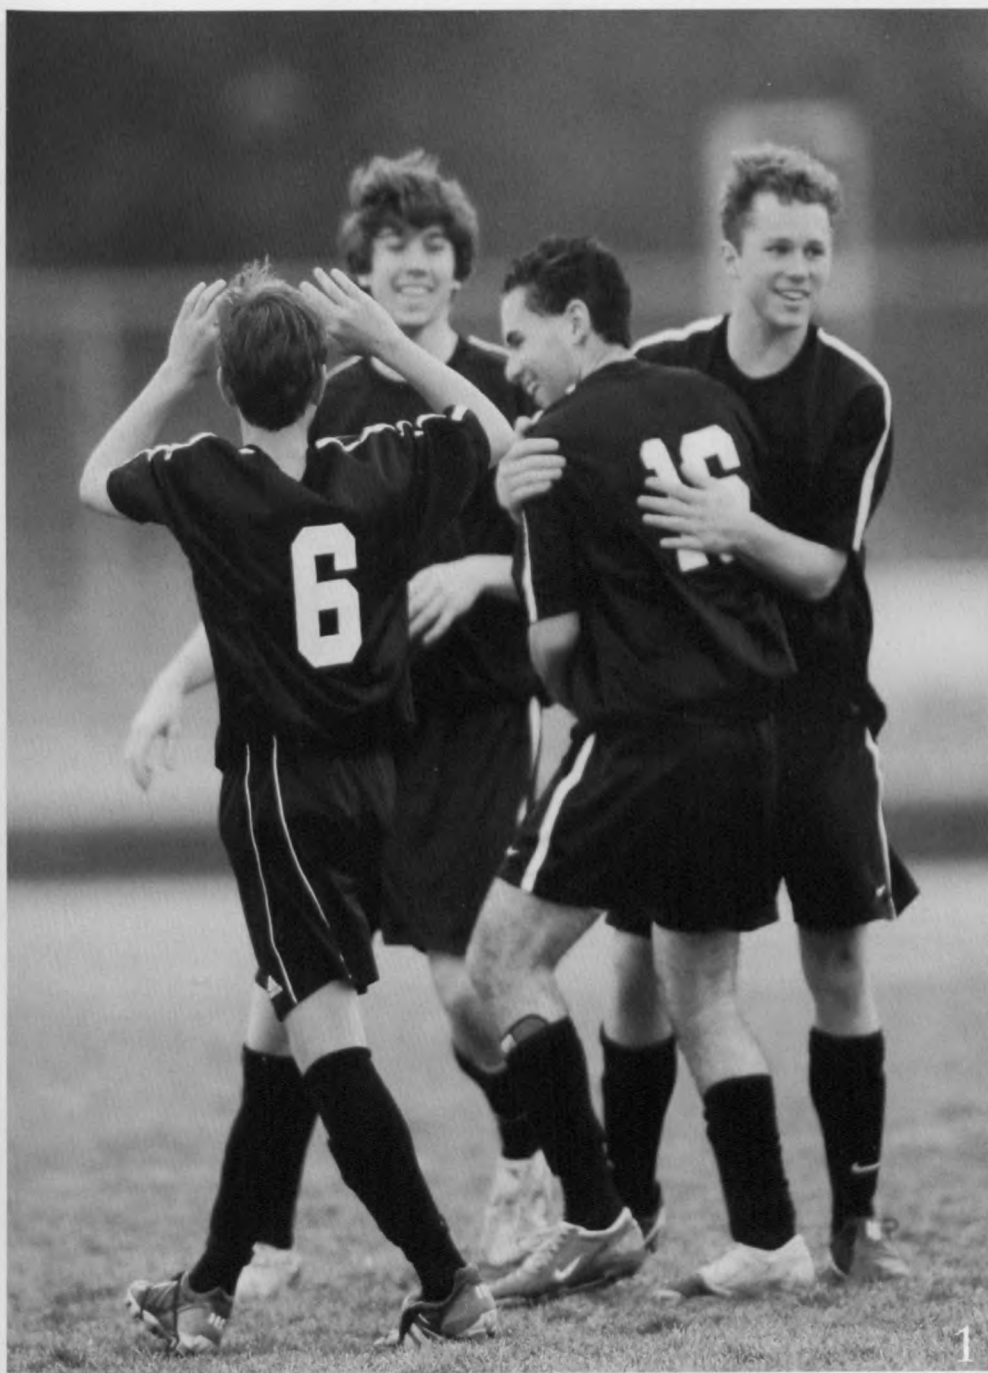

The 18 man JV Boys Soccer team was a young and energetic team. The team traveled to games with the varsity team, playing earlier than varsity, and then staying to watch their games. The boys program is strong and requires a lot of time and dedication to the game to be successful. Coach Pimsean was able to get the Bobcats off their feet with an impressive undefeated beginning to the season. With all of the snow at the start of the season, it was difficult to find practice time with the inclement weather. The young team came out strong giving up limited goals all season.

"I tried out this year for lacrosse because I love playing the game and I knew our team would be good. Coach Marsh prepares us really well during practices for the game situations."

Five days a week the Boys Lacrosse team gathered after school to practice their skills. Practice consisted of running for endurance, drills, and scrimmages. Senior Zach Beakes commented, "Our team is going to be really good this year. We're going to go out and beat all the other teams by at least ten points." The boys were confident that this was their year. Coach Marsh knew that practice was key to winning games. He conditioned the boys before season and during practices. Sophomore Ethan Wright said, "I love the rush of the game. It's really exciting to fight one-on-one for the ball. The boys grew as individual lacrosse players and together as a team. After the first couple of games, the team really started playing together. They learned new skills from each other while working on their strengths and weaknesses. They played a Fall Brawl tournament during the pre-season to get in shape and to condition for the upcoming season. The boys really came together to win the season.

The boys set up a 'zone' defense to protect their goal against incoming opponents.

Girls Varsity Lacrosse

While most of last years strongest players left with the rest of the senior class, only a few key underclassmen remained to help pull the Bobcats through, or so they thought. Tryouts and preseason training brought copious amounts of eager students excited to learn the rules of the game. With several new players, including girls who had never played before, Varsity got off to an impressive start. Captains senior Sara Clam and junior Chanel Figueroa led the girls with pride and dignity. Sub captains sophomore Alison Schumacher and junior Jessica Maples stepped in when the head captains were busy or gone. This gave the underclassmen experience for when they would lead the team as captains. With fewer than five seniors, opposing teams had their doubts, but the girls brought intensity and passion to the field, a combination that could devastate even the strongest of teams. The returning players were accepting of the newbies, and tried their best to teach them all they knew. Game tactics, and technical skills were critical to winning. Mr. Kilgore did his best to assure the girls kept a positive attitude and everyone got playing time for experience. Mr. Schumacher stepped in very effectively helping both team morale and skill level. The girls ordered matching goggles to unify the team, and used bus rides to away games to bond.

Sophomore Allison Aramayo starts the game off in the toss up. Allison played JV in the previous year, but ended up playing in games with Varsity this year.

Freshman Hunter Buchanan dominated the field by catching the ball and keeping it from getting into the wrong hands.

Freshman Timothy Frerichs made his way down the field with the ball.

Who would have thought that teamwork, dedication, and intensity could have lead to a great 2006-2007 school year? The JV boys Lacrosse team showed Battlefield that they had what it took to be champions. With long, daily practices the boys made sure to do their best. Sophomore Joey Shifflette commented, "Even though practices are tiring, the work pays off for the team in the end." Their hard work was rewarded with winning many games this year. The intense season included running and drills to help the boys step up their game. Their efforts guided them through the toughest moments this year. "The games got really intense, but we were always prepared to do our best," freshman Regan Washer said.

Freshman Dylon Nemzek stole the ball away from Garfield to get the ball back to our offensive side.

Freshman Regan Washer fought for possession of the ball

Sophomore Zach Neitzky made a sneaky getaway from the other players.

"One, two, three, go Bobcats!" The screams of the JV Girls Lacrosse team could be heard at every game as they prepared to kick butt. This year Lacrosse's popularity soared as more than 40 girls showed up at tryouts. After three days of intense running and drills, the team was decided. New players, along with returning players, made this year's team exciting and fun for everyone. Freshman Sidney Welch, a new player on the team, commented on the new experience she gained on the team, "I was a little nervous when I tried out, but when I made it, I realized that I loved lacrosse." There were many ups and downs this year, from the pep talk before the games to the celebrations afterwards. The girls this year consider themselves closer than sisters. "Although we get really competitive in practice with each other, we all are closer than ever and support each other during the most extreme moments," junior captain Brooke Travers commented. The lacrosse girls were inseparable. From the laughs they shared to the most extreme moments in games. Winning the first two games came as a surprise to most of the girls. This showed them that their hard work and dedication did pay off in the end. Sophomore Sammie Houser, a new player on the team, as well as the team captain loved the experience she gained from her first year of playing lacrosse, "Lacrosse is a lot of fun, I'm glad I got a chance to try something new and exciting." The two team captains, Brooke Travers and Sammie Houser, were seen shouting out positive comments and words of encouragement, many of them were inspiring such as, "You've got it girls, its your time to shine." This quote carried the girls through their hardest situations.

Junior Matt Crouse comes off the field keeping his arm warm between innings. The lefty started out the season throwing 89 mph and had potential to hit the lower nineties.

Senior David Herbek was an asset to the team. He worked extremely hard through the off season months, taking several camps to improve his skills at shortstop. Herbek started off the season on a high note in the first game with the first homerun.

Dedication. The only word that could describe the core of the Baseball Bobcats, which, along with it's players, has only grown stronger with time. Almost immediately after their spring season was over, the Bobcats were back in the weight room and on the diamond preparing for next season. Several players participated in showcase teams over the summer, in hopes to get their names out to the major colleges in the area.

The 2007 team consisted of sixteen players, including eleven veterans and several players from the JV program. Juniors Matt Crouse, Evan Scott, seniors David Herbek and Bruce Cinibulk, were the team captains, elected by the team as representatives on and off the field.

The boys started out strong in their first couple games, beating Gar field, Freedom and onto a nail biter victory over Hylton in the bottom of the 8th inning after strong pitching and a rally from the offensive lineup.

The Bobcats were led by the upperclassmen, with "ace" pitchers juniors Evan Scott and Matt Crouse. Coach David Carroll, the pitching coach, commented, "I treat them like pros. They have their character flaws, but they are at the pro level."

During the early season the Bobcats took their opponents by storm, using their strong pitching to their advantage. Before their annual trip to Hilton Head for a tournament, the Bobcats were recorded with 3 wins and 2 losses, both of which came down to close last minute plays.

"This team has the ability to take states, if they want it bad enough," commented Head Coach Caudle before their trip, after speaking about the frustrating loss to Potomac the night before. The Bobcats caught the attention of all the teams in the Cedar District, making it known that it was their year to shine.

The Varsity Softball girls are all close to one another. Whether it be because they were on varsity or junior varsity together for a year.

Being number one ranked in the Cedar Run District and number 10 in the DC Metropolitan area, the girls had some pretty high standards for themselves this year. Junior Kaitlyn Sileo said, "Teams are looking to take us down, that our team as the team to beat this year."

The girls spent numerous hours on the practice field each day working hard to perfect their game to accomplish the goals they had set.

They earned second place in the Sports Plus Tournament after losing just 1-0 in the championship game at the beginning of the season. "That in itself was a huge insight for the girls. They finally realized what they were truly capable of," said Coach Schelzo. The girls were very spirited throughout the season, making t-shirts weekly and sporting them instead of their jerseys at school.

The Junior Varsity Baseball season began in mid-February under a blanket of ice and snow. Freshmen from various middle schools showed up for tryouts which were held indoors due to the inclement weather in hopes of spending a spring on Battlefield's diamond. Shortly after the team was selected, the season was underway with their opener against Brentsville. Pitching proved the JV Baseball team's most valuable asset early on in the season. Sophomore Brandon Dransfield dominated opponents with a hard fastball which he could locate both inside and outside on the plate, a bending curveball, and a changeup which kept hitters off-balance. Freshmen Brandon McMahon, Brandon Nimtz, John Shepard, and Danny Drzal rounded out the pitching staff and supported the team with defense in other positions as well. Sophomore Drew Baker said, "I really enjoyed playing for Battlefield because the team became close and we have all become buddies."

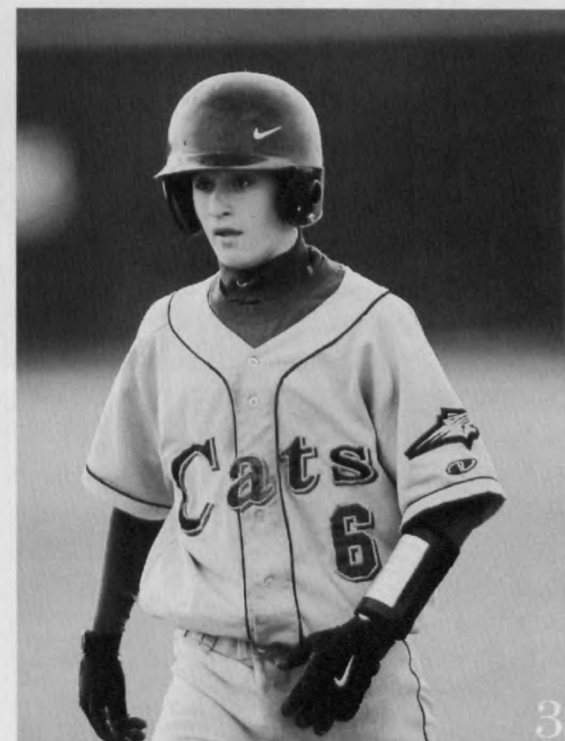

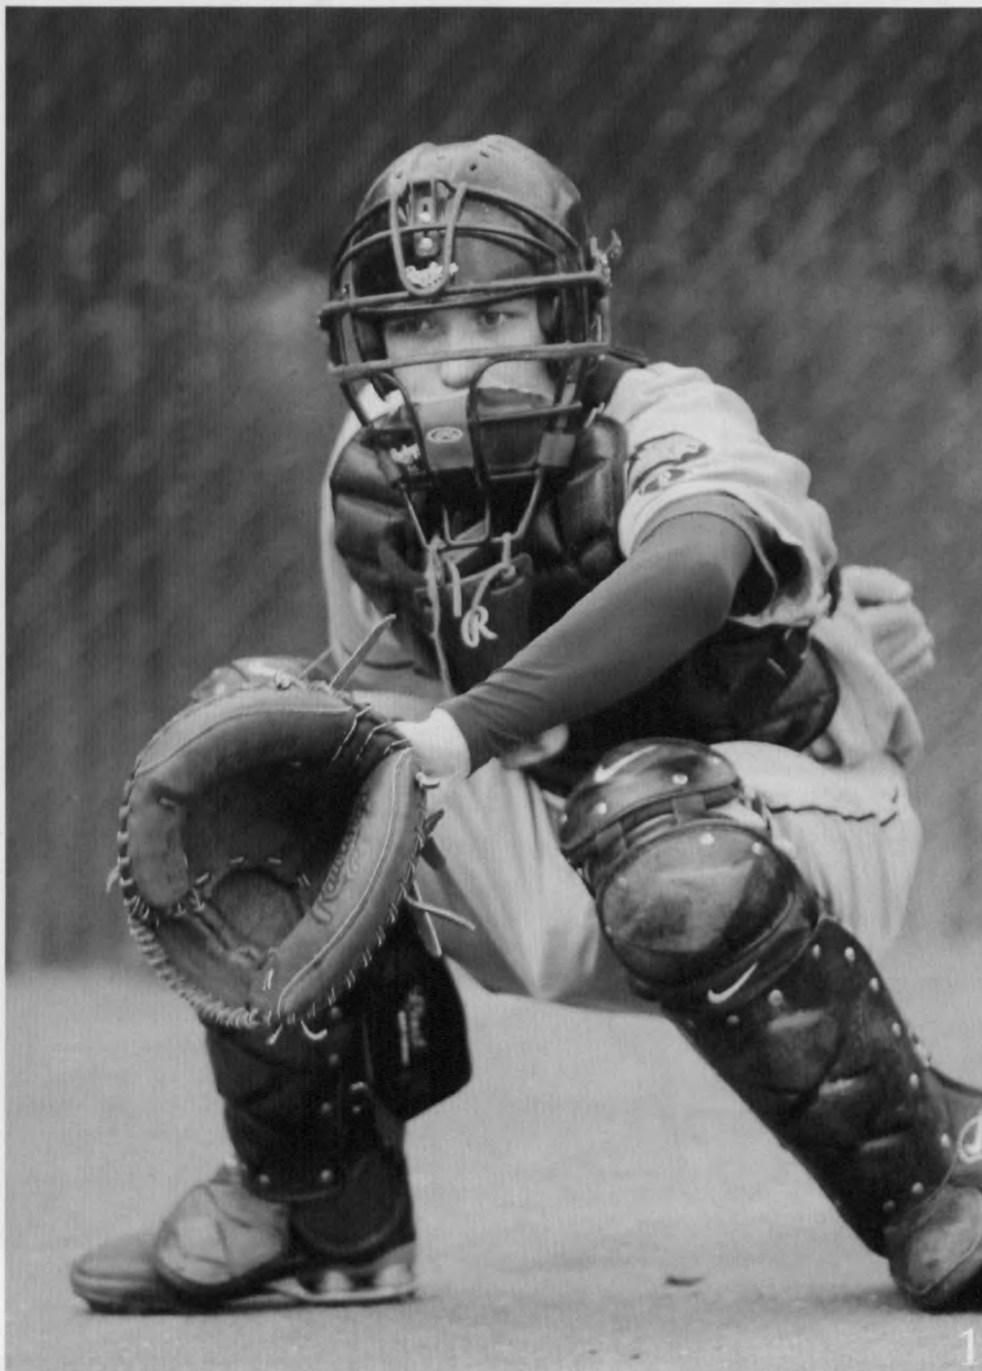

The Junior Varsity Softball team started off the season just like any other. With a few setbacks with snow and ice, the team was forced to play indoors along with the other spring sports. With limited practice time and games pending the team had to come together really quickly to get ready for their first game. Coach Foreman returned as the coach again, as well as several veterans. With such a strong varsity program, the girls had a lot to prove on JV. The season turned out to be successful and kept up the Bobcat reputation.

Outdoor Track began in mid-February with bitterly cold weather, which progressed to warm spring weather. The season brought out many new athletes, as well as fresh talent.

Coach Mobley remarked that the team was the largest he had ever coached, despite the small number of seniors. The season was tough with the quick qualifications for district and regional standards. Athletes had to push hard and run fast and strong in order to outrun their opponents. Sophomore Courtney

Clay remarked, "We are runners. We don't run to see who is the fastest or the strongest. We run to see who has the most guts and can put it where it counts." The athletes had to prove how much they wanted to improve and achieve success throughout the season. Each and every second counted as they reached towards qualifying times. The team had a strong season, with many great races especially by sprinters junior Kim Blaylock, senior Mike Nkwanga, and freshman Genevieve Johnson and distance runners senior Alex Tworkowski, junior Eric Hoepker, and sophomore Gary Martin. At their first invitational at the end of March, the Brian Watkins I-95 Invitational, both the guys and girls team came away with fourth place overall finishes and many medals.

Coach Huddle remarked that the team got more medals that day at the invitational than the previous outdoor seasons combined. The team began shaping up nicely early on despite many injuries throughout the team. Things looked bright for the remainder of the season and post season meets, including districts, regionals, states, and nationals.

What is anime you ask? Many people are unaware of what anime is or what it consists of. Anime was originally developed in Japan, when designers were introduced to an alternate format of storytelling. Anime is excellent for expression and students at Battlefield are starting to take an interest. This was the Anime Club's second year at Battlefield and they were excited and eager to kick off the new year. Club meetings, consisting of reading anime books and watching television shows to study and experience anime first hand, made the students involved in the club ecstatic to participate. President Melissa Bowman explained, "We have so much fun at our meetings. We get to eat food, watch T.V., and have a great time." The Anime Club has inspired many kids to become involved and the club is quickly gaining popularity.

The Bowling Club has been in motion since the school's opening in 2003. The club has been gaining new participants each year as well as returning veterans. The Bowling Club participated in a tournament early in the school year down in Richmond, Virginia. The team met at the Bowl America on Mathis Avenue in Old Town Manassas every Wednesday for practice, and although it may have been a hike for some members, everyone made the commitment and the team really pulled together. "Each year the team has become closer and closer," stated junior Keith Vandagriff.

Mr. Brodt

As the teacher of all band classes Mr. Brodt motivated all of his students to take music seriously. Let the Music Take Control

When the band isn't on the field leading the school to victory, they are in the classroom. For two years the band has maintained the title and respect as a Virginia Honor Band. To earn this title they not only had to earn a superior rating at VBODA, they also had to have a superior rating at Festival. Although Festival is not physically demanding, it focuses entirely on a band's ability to play music. "Over the past three years I have learned how to make music, not just how to play notes," senior Kailan Kinkel claimed. Under the direction of Mr. Brodt, students attained skill by perfecting their technique through constant practice.

After-school practices were necessary during Festival season. This time allowed the Symphonic Band to have a chance to prepare with the percussion section and perfect the music they are working on for Festival. "Not much has changed since last year we are just doing the same things in order to prepare for Festival," Mr. Brodt revealed. With all the support and practices the Battlefield band has, it will not be surprising if they achieve all of their goals.

Since Battlefield's opening in 2004, the Bobcats have depended on BCTV to brighten their mornings. They entertain the whole school with their video-antics and yet still manage to inform the school of all the latest announcements. Senior Kevin Barrientos stated, "BCTV has been one of the funnest things, for me, my whole high school life!"

Many of the students in the class are experienced second or even third year broadcasters. It takes a very artistic mind to come up with successful clips that let the students of Battlefield High School know what is coming up in school news, from blood drive clips to parking spaces PSAs. The students of BCTV learn that teamwork is important and that it takes cooperation and determination to produce something of quality. Through BCTV, students learn how to produce high quality clips. Junior Donnie Hoover explained, "We learn how to make videos and short films in professional and interesting ways." BCTV has become a cup of coffee that sparks us to waken and get in the day. Do-Re-Mi-Fa-So-La-Ti-Do! To many tone deaf people, this combination is tough to accomplish, but to the chorus, it is a daily warm-up. Every day these vocalists stretch their vocal chords to their extent making a beautiful instrument out of their voices.

Every year students stream through the chorus classes and every so often we come across the next Diana Ross. It takes time and effort but that is what has made our chorus so great. The few that show strong dedication excel greatly, especially with the help of Ms. Gregory. After a year of singing, these talented people have experience and great memories to show for it.

There are 6 classes of chorus: Treble, Varsity, Chamber, Bel Canto, Men's, and Battlefield Singers. The last four are classes that you must first audition to enter. Over the year the classes went to Festival and over spring break the advanced classes traveled to Boston to perform. As for the Chamber, Bel Canto, Men's, and Singers, they preformed a 61 page Mozart score with Woodbridge high school and an orchestra. They practiced over the summer at Woodbridge and after school at Battlefield. They also preformed a song called Magnum Mystery with the concert band under the direction of the band director, Mr. Brodt. The teacher, Ms. Gregory organized numerous concerts over the year. Dedication from all was key, and after learning the familiarity of the voices of classmates, the chorus was able to slowly mold into an unbreakable group, with an unbreakable bond.

President Lora Robinson

Lora Robinson was elected chorus president for the 2006-2007 school year. She has put alot of effort into making chorus a winning group. She is 19 years old and has been singing since she was 2 and continues to love to sing. Her favorite part about being in chorus is the actual singing. She also says that she loves it becuase of how much fun she gets to have not only singing but getting to have fun with her friends. While being the president is alot of responsibility, its also mean students looking up to her which helps to drive her to be her best. As a soprano she gets to expierence the singing view of chorus and the business view as the president and does a gret job at both.

Gettin' Down in Mo-Town

Every year is accompanied by regular fall, winter and spring concerts, however this year the Mo Town concert brought a little extra flavor to the agenda. This was a special tribute to the Mo Town era, in which students could select their owns ongs and perform in smaller groups. This year the top groups from Battlefield Singers, Bel Canto, Men's Choir and Chamber went to Boston, Massachusetts to compete and perform. This was by far the biggest trip from the chorus departmen get so far. The competition started the weekend spring break started. It lasted Thursday through Sunday and was four days of pure musical fun. The chorus did an incredible job impressing all who listened. The opportunity to see a Battlefield performance is nothing to skip over.

Seniors Allan Kadir, Chris Snuffer, and freshman Jonathan Shin all relax after a period of singing.

Seniors Keleyn Clark, senior Chris Snuffer, junior Cameron Lodge, senior Tim Kennedy, sophomore Steven Rudolph, and senior Sergei Hughitt warm up at the start of Chamber Chorus.

Chorus Teacher

Ms. Gregory juggled six chorus classes, auditions, concerts, a trip to Boston, and fundraising smoothly. She took pride in making sure words, dynamics, and tone quality were all perfection before any of her ensembles stepped on stage to perform. Loved by all, the chorus department would be nothing without her.

Different Strokes for Different Folks

Creative Writing is an elective. However, it isn't just a course taken to bring up a student's GPA. They have another job, and that is to create and sell the literary magazine. Mr. Bilko, the instructor, chose students who he felt are responsible enough to edit, promote, and perfect the magazine to be the best it can be. The purpose of the Literary Magazines is to show the talent and wild imaginations of Battlefield. Beyond the responsibilities of putting together the magazine, students also get to express themselves through daily journals. Mr. Bilko gives students a prompt and sets them free to explore the world of creativity.

The course is described as writing intensive, basically with it's sole purpose to let students write in a variety of styles. They use their talents to create magazine advertisements for invented and real companies in the area.

4. Juniors Jackie Hodges, Susie Hodges, Valerie Calvano, and Amy Biestek gather and eat great food provided by the Culture Club, in honor of the Day of the Dead Festival.

Around the World

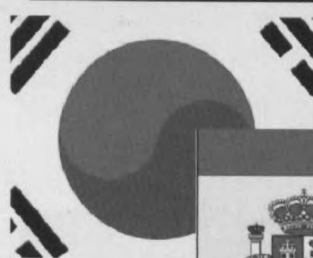

Not many clubs are built upon ones culture and roots which makes the Culture Club very unique. The Culture Club started when the school opened in its first year. Since then, the club has held many events for the entire student body. Such events include the Day of the Dead, and the annual Foreign Language Festival. These events have celebrated the diverse heritages that make up Battlefield. Everyone can agree that these events are very exciting, usually accompanied with various types of music and dancing. Led by Ms. Martinez and Mrs. Dennis, the club has proven to be an excellent group of young adults who aim to have fun, eat great food, and most importantly, bring together all the different types of people.

While the culture you possess is unchangeable, the personality traits you acquire may be altered. Making sure that the students are equipped with the right mindset on the issues of stereotypes and discrimination is a major goal of the Peer Diversity Club. The club made its debut just this year at Battlefield. The members were personally nominated by their teachers. The Peer Diversity Club visited many classrooms discussing discrimination and stereotypes. Sophomore student body president, Pierce Bishop says, "Not only have I learned about the stereotypes I have and how to get rid of them, but also I realize how many people in our school are hampered by theirs." Led by Mrs. Byers and Mr. Dittmer, the club is made up of about 25 members. We should expect to see many great things from this new aspiring club.

Club President

Senior Yiseul Jeon led the Culture Club in the 2006-2007 school year. She says, "the club is more of a gathering of unique ethnicities. We'll hold different celebrations for various holidays. I really enjoy it!"

The Distributive Education Clubs of America or better known as DECA encouraged all students enrolled in the marketing program to participate in it. Ms. Vaughn and Ms. Smith were the teacher-sponsors. Members of DECA competed in Districts in early January. Qualifying DECA members then went on to the State Competition in March. DECA participated in fundraisers along with DECA-related events.

During Districts, 11 members automatically qualified for States. Twenty-nine members placed within the top three during Districts. Senior Georgia Stoyanov said, 'DECA is a fun and laid-back club and I like competing in Districts. DECA activities included a fashion show, DECA week, turkey teacher contest, and the New York City trip. Senior Bo-Ram Lim said, 'It's fun to be involved with activities that relate to what we're doing in fashion class.' On the weekend of March ninth, some of the DECA members went to their regional competition, where many of the participants either made it to nationals or recieved metals. Jamie Barusefski qualified for nationals after having two seperate interviews and one written test. Becca Walls also had a written test and qualified for nationals.

Taking the stage

In the fall of 2006, the drama department performed once again on The Battlefield Stage. The masterpiece happened to be Antigone from the mind and hand of Greek playwright, Sophocles. The cast came together and did their job with the help of great stage design and lighting. The white toga clad chorus introduced scenes to the enticed audiences with sweet, harmonic songs. This symphony of sound was aided by a skilled cast. The tragedy about two warring brothers' deaths that causes Creon's world to fall apart had its own brilliance. Yet, as Heather Miller stated, "This would not have been a play without Becca (Rudolph)." Staying behind the curtain, junior Becca Rudolph played a huge role throughout the development of the play. From helping direct to just getting everyone as far as they are now. Going from one act plays for the past two years to musicals and much more is a huge advancement for the students involved in The Drama Club. Drama is not only a class in school, it is also demands dedication and time after school where students can be found practicing and studying their lines on the glossy, hardwood stage.

Mr. Murphy

"I have only been a drama teacher this year yet we progressed immensely going from one act to a musical. When teachers and coaches say their season is over with sports and such, my reply is [that] my season is never over."

With all the sports and stuff, it's hard to find time after school," said Adrian when asked what he thought about English in the computer labs.

English's Best

Every year there is one class all students must take. It is not the long equations of math, long lectures in social studies, or red goggle marks in science class. It is none other than the world of literature and writing so correctly called English class. Freshmen read Harper Lee's To Kill A Mockingbird and studied a court case while the sophomores read Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart and watched an African culture crumble. Sophomore Kyle Leas said, "I really enjoyed this book because I was introduced to a culture I had never heard of." The juniors happily wrote their research papers for what seemed like decades, source cards overflowed their backpacks for months. Finally, the seniors enjoyed a bookend year of American literature.

Yet, the best of the best in English join the Quill and Scroll Club, the English Honor Society. The organization did a lot of community service including book drives and aided the juniors with their research papers. Led by junior Morgan Savoia, the group planned on going to a Journalism Convention in New York City. The group really tried to boost their membership by including many more English students. Quill and Scroll hopes to become a more well-represented and respected club in the next year.

Leadership

Future Business Leaders of America, otherwise known as FBLA, is a great organization for students preparing to be leaders in the community, government, and business. FBLA participates in a variety of leadership activities. Battlefield has had the club since the beginning of the school's existence. One of the club sponsors, Mrs. Atkins, said, "FBLA is like life. You get out of it what you put into it." FBLA has done many activities this year which have brought the members together. In November, they sponsored Operation Turkey. The fundraiser collected food from each homeroom to encourage friendly school-wide competition. The class with the most food received a breakfast complimentary from FBLA. Members also sponsored two kids through Care Kids for Christmas, bringing in items that the kids requested. FBLA week took place at the end of February and members were encouraged to participate in designated days, such as Teacher Appreciation Day. At the beginning of March, members who were in a business class competed in the Regional Competition and later moved on to the State Competition in Reston. Towards the end of the month, business and marketing classes toured New York City for three days, learning about all different aspects of what NYC has to offer. FBLA founder, Hamden L. Forkner, said, "Leadership is not the ability to lead others. Leadership is the ability to get others to lead themselves."

Officers read over their duties as Mrs. Risi explains how exciting the year will be.

Let the Games Begin, let the Glory be God's.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes was a club where athletes could join together in faith, fun, and fellowship. The meetings usually consisted of prayer, worship, a lesson, and food. In some meetings, a student led drama was performed. The mission statement of FCA was to impact students, athletes, and coaches for Christ. "That's our goal, we want to reach every single athlete and non-athlete in our school for Christ," Lauren Peacock, a junior, said.

FCA took part in fundraisers including selling club t-shirts to members, coaches, and athletes. Some members of the leadership team also went behind the counter at Coldstone Cremery to scoop up a few extra dollars. "It was a ton of fun" said Junior Kelly Johnson, "it was a great way to raise some money."

This year, EDGE placed their focus on a deeper relationship with God. They shared personal testimonies, interpreted the deeper meaning of the bible, and explored different ways of prayer. Guest speakers came to share with the group about once a month.

The students gathered for both EDGE and FCA once a week to discuss school events and family issues. The students all prayed together and helped to increase each others faith.

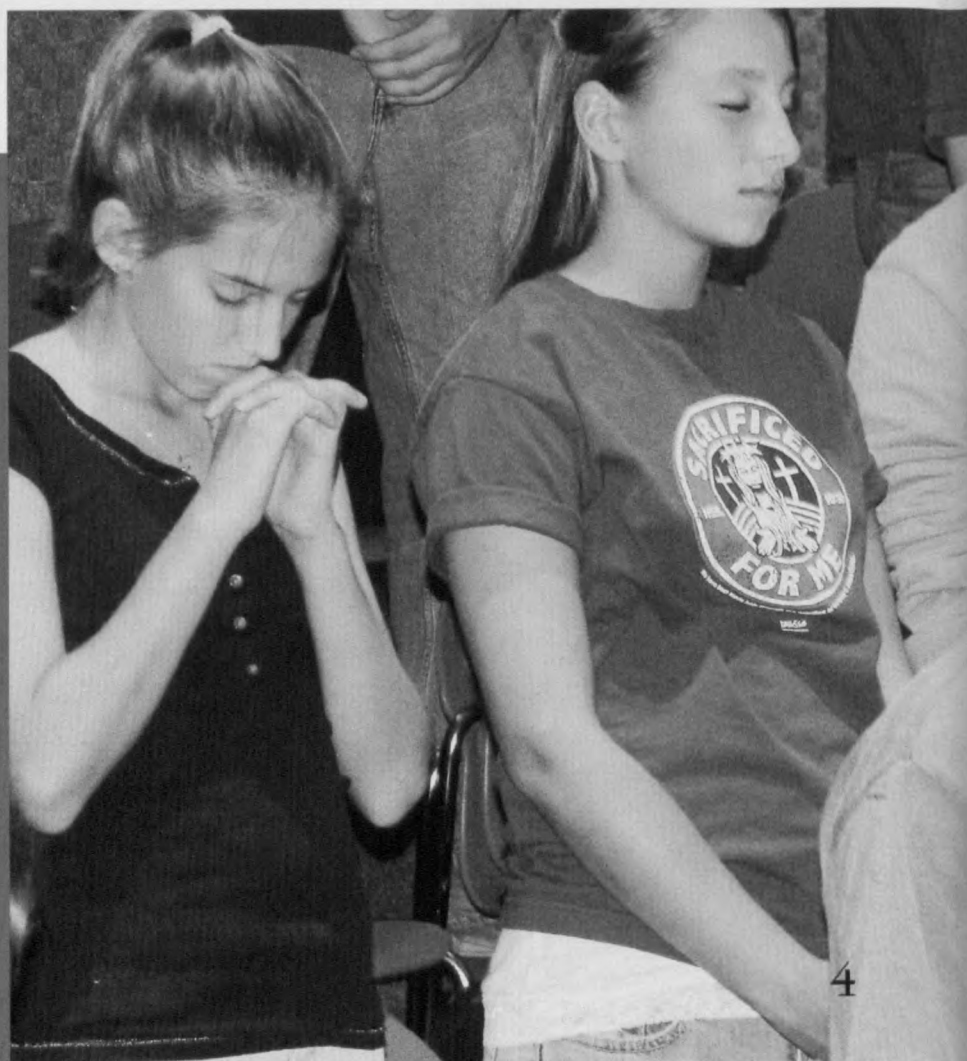

Any student could attend FCA or EDGE club meetings, whether they were stressed or upset or wanted to pray and feel relaxed. FCA and EDGE were clubs to help students share their faith.

FCA Meetings

The FCA leadership team was hard at work all year making sure meetings ran smoothly, organizing games and lessons, preparing for worship, working on ways to fundraise, and ways to outreach to the school. The leadership team is a group of highly dedicated individuals who want to impact athletes at Battlefield for Christ.

Speak Easy

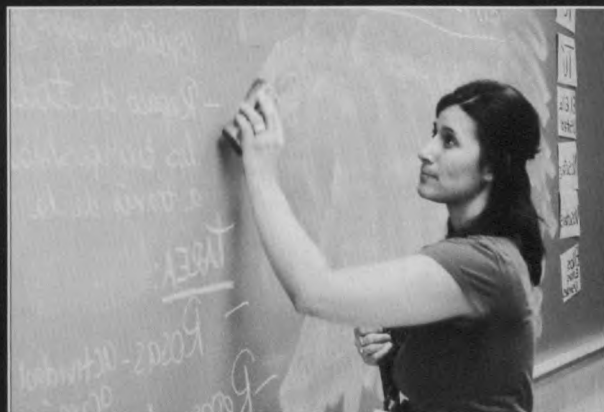

The languages most commonly studied were Spanish and French, but the school offered variety with German and Latin. Some students might think that it is not beneficial to take a foreign language because it will be forgotten as soon as the last year is done, but junior Kelsey Brown commented, "I will definitely use Spanish in real life. Fifty percent of people in the U.S. are supposed to be Spanish-speaking by 2012, or something crazy like that. Many jobs pay more if you are fluent. I'll use it every day."

Students think that foreign languages are extremely difficult to learn, but in reality the languages can be easily picked up. Senior April Shettle exclaimed, "Everyone has this horrible image about how hard a foreign language is! After the second or third year, it's much easier."

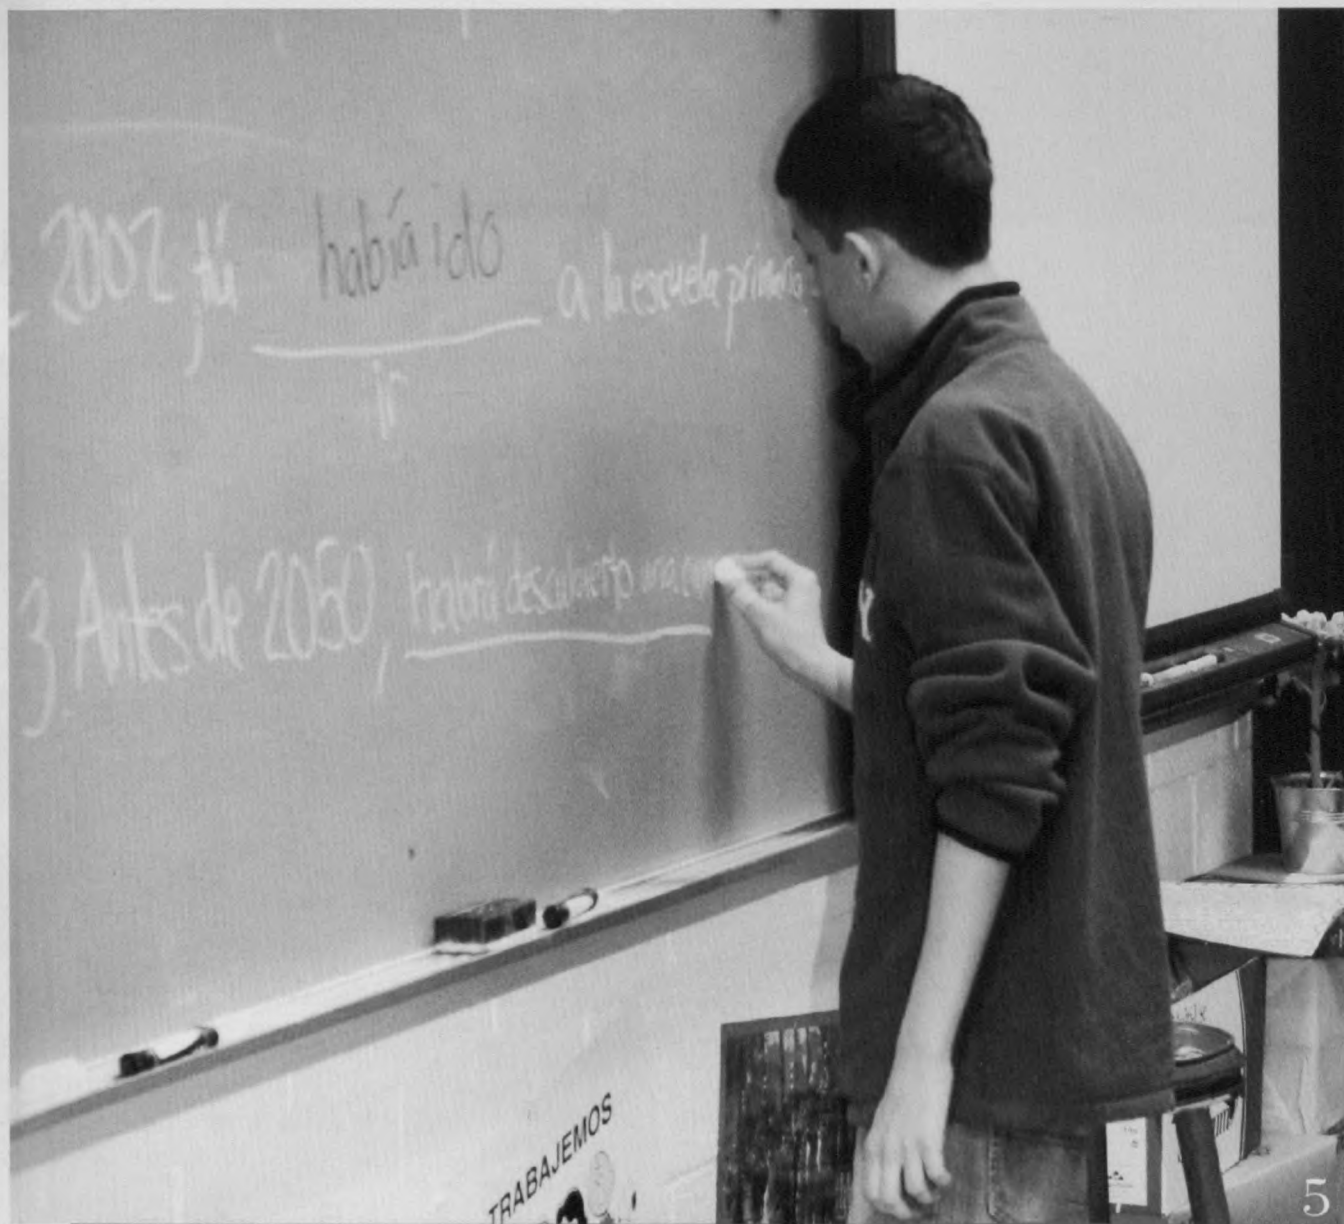

When students were asked if they enjoyed taking a Foreign Language and if they would use it after high school most students agreed that they would. Sophomore Tyler LedDuke said, "I love that I can now speak in a foreign country and understand the natives." Many students agreed that they would enjoy traveling to a foreign country and speaking the native language while visiting.

Some students decided that the language could talk for itself. Junior Donnie Hoover simply stated, "Me amo español."

Señora Bruckschen

Señora Bruckschen erases a warm-up during a Spanish 2 class. She has been teaching Spanish at Battlefield since it's opening, although this year she also taught a German class.

Shaping the future

The Future Educators Club of America made a slow start from last year but went into full blast as this year progressed. For the first time, Battlefield opened a club to help teach students how to be teachers. The club's sponsor was Mrs. Lucas and the president, senior Loralee Morris organized the activities and meetings once a month. Ms. Lucas said, "I sponsor FEA because I believe that knowledge is given to us to pass along. Therefore, encouraging students to pursue a profession in education, so that they can pass it on." The Vice President was senior Sharron Burnham and the Secretary/treasurer was senior Roseadra Davis Brown. Additional members this year are junior Kathryn Murphy, junior Easter Park and senior Danyelle Thomas.

So far, FEA has collected and donated in the Walk for Education in October to raise money for the club. Their efforts went toward the club and FEA towards a scholarship for this club. Their next plan was to shadow teachers during school, observe, and try to develop their teaching skills. They planned to go to the local elementary schools, observe teachers and assist some teachers during or after school there too. Most of the members agreed that they would like to teach history and joined the club to get some experience on teaching. Senoir Kathryn Murphy said, "It's great to have the experiance before youiu actually commit yourself to a career."

The love of exercise

Physical Education, also known as PE, is a class that all freshmen and sophomore students are required to take before they graduate. Whether it is enjoyed or dreaded by students, everyone must take PE. There is a sport for everyone, from softball out on the field, to kickball in the gym. Many students have favorites they like to play. Students have PE lockers, separate from regular lockers, where they keep their Battlefield PE uniforms which they are required to dress into every PE class.

Health is a class taken by all freshmen. Meanwhile, the sophomores take first aid in the classroom, learning how to perform CPR and how to tend to medical needs out in the real world. The freshmen health class focuses on learning about the body and everything in it. Some students think it is a difficult class and some say it's an easy class to pass.

Driver's Ed is a sophomore class which is split with PE and first aid. The Driver's Ed portion of the class gives students a chance to take "Behind-The-Wheel," if desired, and the students are educated about cars and how to operate them correctly. It's a great way to be prepared to drive. Sophomore Claire Papp said, "Driver's Ed was a good class for me because I barely knew about cars and how to work them. It really prepared me for the road."

Juniors and seniors have an opportunity to take weight lifting with Mr. Mello or Coach Cox. This is a period dedicated to working on muscles for athletes or even the people who aren't athletes.

1. Coach White plays volleyball with some of his students and the volleyball team.
2. Senior Brian Wilson enjoys lifting weights to improve on his muscles.

3. Juniors Austin Smith and Ben Wellington work on their back muscles during weight-lifting.
4. Sophomore Joshua Langhorne practices CPR during health class/First AID.

Hip Hop Royalties

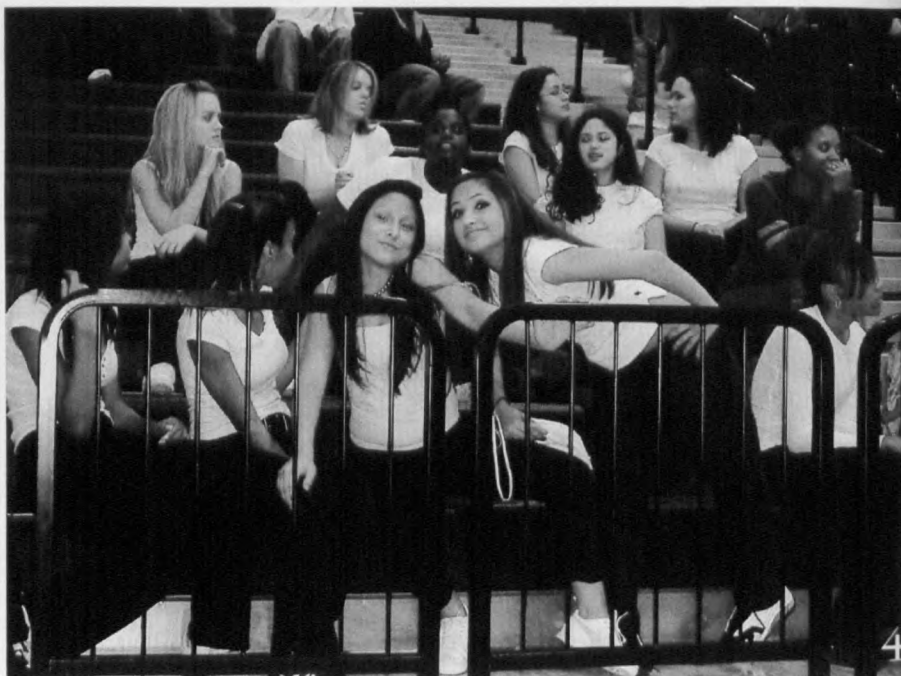

Battlefield's Hip Hop team came a long way since it first started out in 2004. They had struggled a lot through the years, from trying to find a sponsor that will support them, to getting their music, dance, and name approved. The Certified Soldiers is what they called themselves but they changed sponsors from time to time, performed once or twice in the year, and had no uniform. Although this occurred, the Hip Hop team learned from their mistakes and grew stronger in the past two years. The team now could scream out "Hip Hop Royalties!" With new captains and a new committed sponsor the team was back with a vengeance and was more than ready to show what they had. Sophomore co-captains Cici DeJesus and Airika Hancock dedicated their time to having a great, up beat team with positive attitudes. The Royalties had fundraisers to raise money for uniforms and to get things started. By the end of the season the team received the respect they deserved from their peers and get to continue their journey.

Junior Lauren Baker stated that the thing she enjoyed most about the step team was that, "All the girls are sisters, and we enjoy stepping." The movie, Stomp the Yard, inspired all the girls, especially sophomore captain Chantal Ansah who thought the movie was motivation to do better. During the second pep rally the team was able to perform for the first time in front of the whole school. They were anxious and excited, but everything turned out for the best.

International Club

The Battlefield High School International Club is only the second chapter of this organization in the United States. The purpose is to 1) make the Battlefield population aware of the various cultures and issues in our world today and 2) raise funds to help established non-profit organizations that serve populations in need in the international community. The main charity that the club supported was the International Red Cross. Through the club effort the members participated in numerous fundraisers for different charities. Juniors Emily Crawford and Grace Dryden organized several fundraisers including a Krispy Kreme sale where the club raised money for the International Red Cross. International Club also participated in the program called Cows for Kids, a program designed to help nomadic families in Kenya. The club was able to purchase two cows for the nomadic families with the money they raised.

Besides helping to raise money for international charities, the members also learn about different cultures and raise awareness for the different global issues that are going on in our world today. The club's news reporter, junior Amanda Paris, says "I just want to make a difference and want to inform students about what is really going on in the world." International Club had a current events portion every meeting to update the members of new issues currently going on in the world. The club also had many speakers, including a military official that talked about the situation going on in Iraq.

President Kara Mountain and Vice President Susan Leeare were impressed with the growth of the club. Mrs. Curry is the club sponsor and makes the members interested in the world around us. The International Club wants to make a difference in the world and wants to make people want to make a difference.

The Air Force JROTC is a productive program that helps kids with physical fitness and manners. The AFJROTC program opened up many opportunities to mold leaders and provided activities to keep students on track. The students learned manners, how to eat at a ball or formal event, the different ways to dress in formal, informal, and casual occasions, and how to march and to do the different turns involved in marching. They trained for parades and other activities as well. Every morning, the students in AFJROTC put up the flags out in front of the school, and every evening they took them down. Building better citizens and friends was a goal of the program.

In November, the students chose a college and had to write a letter requesting more information on the college. Once they got the information back, they prepared a presentation for the rest of the class. The students also participated in practice quizzes for the SATs and helped with the Blood Drive.

AFJROTC is not only strict drills and commands. They also enjoy fun activities like knockout, darts, and a flight school program on the computer. Students compete for positions as leader, and everyone takes turns instructing the flights. Once you get into the program, you have a wonderful support system that can help you when you are having trouble in school or just when you needed someone to talk to.

Caring- Our way of life

Key Club is a club dedicated to serving our home, school, and community. The mission statement is, "Key Club is an international student led organization, which provides its members with opportunities to provide service, build character and develop leadership." Leading the club was junior Rebecca Thomas; President, senior Yi Seul Joen; Vice President, sophomore Priscella Son; Treasurer, sophomore Kenney Lim; Secretary, Junior Morgan Savoia; Editor, Senior Shantel Jorquera; Senior Class Representative, junior Susan Lee; junior Class representative, sophomore Fortuna Gyltsen; sophomore Class Representative, freshman Nick Tremols; freshman Class Representative. Throughout the year officers led the Key Club in carrying out the core values of the organization: leadership, character building, caring, and inclusiveness.

Starting the year off, Key Club participated in two community walks: Light the Night and The Walk for Diabetes. Both walks were a huge success. Key Club raised over $1,000 for the American Diabetes Association.

They sponsored Care Kids, a program providing less fortunate children with holiday presents. Many clubs and classes aided in "adopting" and providing over sixty children with presents. Merry Messengers was a holiday fundraiser the club ran. Members sold candy canes and flowers during lunch. Flowers and candy canes were delivered to students during first period right before Winter Break. All the proceeds from Merry Messengers went to help buy gifts for Care Kid Children.

Throughout the spring, Key Club worked with Alvey Elementary School, tutoring and mentoring students. Both the high school students and elementary students had a lot of fun working together. Key Club held its third annual blood drive in April. Once again, the club was very successful thanks to those who participated by giving blood and offering their services.

The club wrapped up its year by hosting our 2nd Annual Teacher Appreciation Breakfast. Mr. Fitzgerald said, "The breakfast went very well. I was impressed that students planned, organized, and carried out the project by themselves. It was a nice thing for the students to do for the teachers." This year's breakfast was even better than last, and turned out to be a great project. The Battlefield chapter of Key Club has had another successful year. They will continue to work to develop competent, capable, and caring students through the vehicle of service in years to come.

Marching to the Beat of the Drum

One of Battlefield High School's most successful programs was the Marching Band. Not only did they perform at all of the home football games but there was also a lot more to the group than a Friday night performance. Junior Chris Klene, SCA vice-president, spoke of how "Marching Band starts around mid-July and goes all the way to early November." They worked intensively the whole season having practices three times a week, two to five on Wednesdays and six to eight on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Despite all the hard work and sacrifice, it was all worth it when they were able to compete at high levels and perform in prestigious competitions. Their hard work paid off because they won several awards and placed first in nearly all of their competitions.

The man behind the band was the enthusiastic director, Mr. Brodt. He worked hard to ensure that the band's performance was excellent. "He's a no nonsense kind of guy who does not accept mediocrity," said junior Matt Dobbins. With such encouragement and demand from a director, the Marching Band became a well known body of devoted students.

Anyone who was in band class was able to join the marching band, but unless they were willing to pull their own weight, Mr. Brodt would dismiss the students. Senior Kailan Kinkel said "I'm a senior and a rookie, but freshmen should definitely try out for the Marching Band." With such a high bar of expectations, the band received nothing less than awards, applause, and support.

Members of National Honor Society were selected for their achievements in academics, leadership, character, and service. National Honor Society was responsible for activities such as after school tutoring in the library, the Blood Drive, and the Mentor/Mentee program at Alvey Elementary School.

Students who needed extra help turned to National Honor Society for tutoring. Working with peers allowed students to feel relaxed and they were given the attention that is sometimes not available in a class full of other students. Senior Jessica Kim commented, "I helped out with the induction ceremony for the juniors, I am also involved in the Korean Central Presbyterian Church Choir. I tutor at Glenkirk Elementary for fourth graders, but I'm basically a floating tutor."

Under the supervision of NHS sponsor, Ms. Parrott, National Honor Society members organized the annual Blood Drive. The Blood Drive was an opportunity for Battlefield to come together as a whole student body to make a difference.

National Honor Society members also volunteered at Alvey Elementary School to mentor students. Through fun activities, NHS members and Alvey students alike learned trust, communication, and teamwork. The members gave back to the school and community helping to create a better environment. "NHS has really helped me to connect with the community through service activities," said senior Yaniris Gomez.

National Art Honor Society, who held their meetings every Thursday, is about more than just creating art, they are also about helping others appreciate it more and see that it is actually a lot more important than we think. NAHS students did their best to cover as much of the school as possible with art, such as murals, to show the community and local children that art is all around us, whether it's just another t-shirt or a painting, you can't avoid it. It is a way for people to express themselves through shapes and colors and show others the world through the artist's eyes.

"We do art and we're honorable, that's what we do," said junior Nathan Hagan, who last year created the robocat mural for the Bobcat Robotics Team and this year helped in the creation of the attendance office mural.

During the month of March, also known as Youth Art Month, they held an art show in the library which included pieces by BHS art students which were also later included with artwork from local elementary schools, middle schools, and Stonewall Jackson High in a community art show at the Manassas Mall. Then later on that month they held a sidewalk drawing contest where all students were able to participate for charity and still have a little fun getting to create art of their own on school property.

The National French Honor Society, or NFHS, is not a typical club in which anyone can join. To join you must first be recommended or nominated by your French teacher. On top of the recommendation you must also have an accumulative GPA of at least 3.0 and have an A average in your French class, which for the exceptional students in NFHS is not a problem.

"The National French Honor Society is a club where people with the same interests can come to learn more about the sophisticated French culture," said junior and Co-President Sydney Taylor. "We also come up with ideas for upcoming NFHS activities like going to plays in French and dining at French restaurants." The NFHS, being a rather active club, has been to several plays including Les Misérables at the National Theatre in D.C. "We are now planning a trip to go to yet another play, The Phantom of the Opera," said French teacher and NFHS advisor Madame Clemence.

NFHS has its definite benefits but it is not all fun and games. In order to hold your place in the NFHS you must get 10 service hours until graduation. These service hours can be completed by tutoring French students, participating in the activities, and simply attending the meetings.

The NFHS is not just a wonderful way to immerse yourself in a fascinating culture but it also looks great for a college application. For all those taking French and are not yet in the NFHS, make sure to be on good terms with your French teacher and keep your grades strong, because it is well worth the trouble. Senior and Treasurer Jill Fuerst said, "Being in the National French Honor Society is awesome because we get to take the culture beyond what we learn in the classroom."

"L'Homme qui sait deux langues en vaut deux. The man who knows two languages is worth two people."

2. Junior Joshua Semat enjoys his reading and working activities that involve fun stories. "I like how in Latin our passages are about conquering cities and killing monsters."

3. Latin teacher, Ms. Yount searches the net to find fun ideas for the students assignment. "I love thinking of brand new ideas to teach my Latin classes."

4. The Latin students took the time to get together to make a banner to decorate the hall with the language they are proud to represent.

Carpe Diem

Latin has taught the students the meaning of carpe diem by working hard in class and being educated by Ms. Yount. It gave the students the opportunity to continue learning the history and culture of Rome.

Class was more enjoyable with the funfilled activities, games, competitions, and songs that Ms. Yount has made for the students. First and second year students were assigned to study the importance of grammar and vocabulary of the language. Students that continued studying Latin for their third or fourth year learned to compare ancient heroes with modern heroes. Senior Bruce Park said, "It is interesting to learn about Caesar and his great accomplishments."

Not only has Latin given a history teaching for them, but it has also aided students with their SAT vocabulary. We know today that much of our vocabulary was derived by the Latin language. This has given the students a beneficial education for their future. "Latin is good because it helped me pass my PSATs," exclaimed sophomore Claire Papp.

Junior Michael Mast took the position of president in National Latin Honor Society. "I enjoy working with other people and learning Latin at a different view."

A few of our scientists, Ms. Neff, Yoo Sun Shim (club president), and Susan Lee, have made this possible by creating the Science National Honor Society. This school year is the first year the SNHS has been present at our school, however, they are not wasting anytime getting it off the ground. They have already participated in electing their officers, had a candle fundraiser to pay for their charter fee, pins, and certificates, and planned a weekend science academy for elementary aged students in the area run by our schools SNHS members. "My hope for these students," states club sponser and chemisty teacher, Ms. Neff, 'is to share their ability and interest in science with others and to give members opportunities to advance their own science knowledge." To become a part of this club, BHS students must be a senior or junior, have taken at least one advanced science course, 3.5 across all sciences, 3.0 minimum GPA, and students must also be currently taking a science course.

For the Spanish Honor Society students, Spanish is important. Not only is the United States growing in diversity but Battlefield is too. All the top students in Spanish gather together to share their talents and help others and the community. The society's first order of business was electing officers. The President- senior Laura Benade, Vice President- senior Jorge Liloy, Secretary- junior Mohammad Imaad, and Treasurer- senior David Ortiz, worked hard to set up meetings. Their creative ideas helped the Honor Society to get involved with the community. To start off the year, the club joined together with National Honor Society to spend a Saturday cleaning up the school. They came prepared with gloves and trash bags to clean the entire outside area of the school grounds. After about three to four hours, NHS and SHS students and their sponsors felt really good about what they'd done. SHS sponsor Mrs. Byers said smiling, "It makes you feel good to clean up trash. I know it is weird but it is a great sensation. I am so proud of my students." Among other things, Spanish Honor Society also created a banner for the Homecoming Parade, went to exciting authentic Spanish restaurants, and was involved with the Care For Kids Program.

15 Thousand

Millions of people wake up everyday to a hot cup of coffee and the morning newspaper. The question is what newspaper were they reading? Was it The Washington Post, The Gainesville Times, or Battlefield's 15 Thousand. With only six editions a year, there were not quite enough editions of the newspaper to be able to read one every morning. Even so, they were still neat to read once they made it to print. The newspaper got its name from the school's address, 15000 Graduation Drive. Its mission during the 2006-2007 school year was to successfully create and publish the school's newspaper.

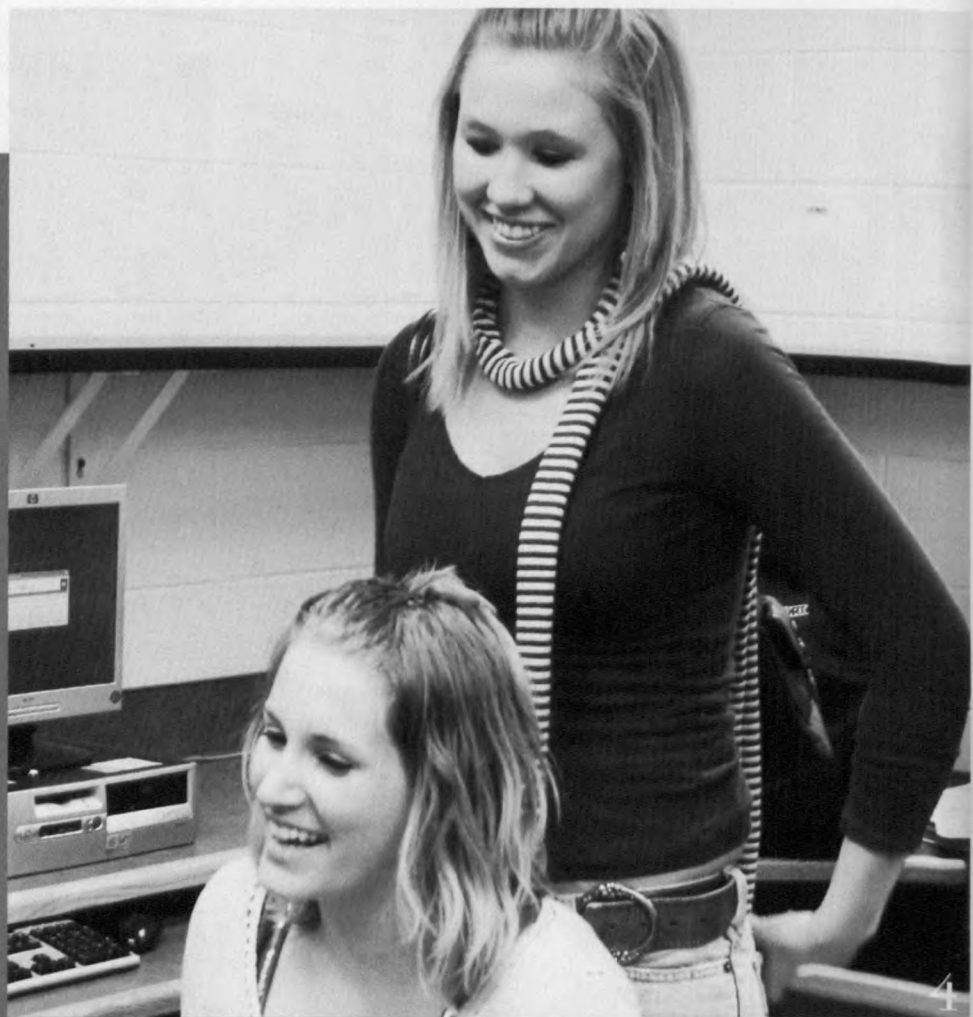

The newspaper covered an assortment of topics, which ranged from sports to fashion to controversial opposing viewpoints. Writers attended school events such as Homecoming, sports games, pep rallies, and other activities to cover their story with precise information. The staff writers conducted interviews with potentially newsworthy individuals, as well as various school athletes and teams. The writers also worked on other various articles which they knew their student body would enjoy reading and be interested in. Staff writer, junior Katie Brown said, "It's a lot of fun because you get to write about pretty much anything."

Not all pieces students wrote made it to print. Many of the articles were used to help Mr. Marshall, Battlefield's journalism teacher, and Chief Editor and senior Lindsay Smyers determine what areas the students were best at writing. Also, unused articles were still useful to the writer after being edited because they helped the student's writing to strengthen through seeing corrected mistakes and constructive criticism.

Journalism teacher, Mr. Marshall, said, "I try to make this experience as real as possible and I try to make it have the feel of a real newsroom."

The orchestra was a dedicated group of students and worked hard to win all of their competitions to come home with a superior rating. They were also involved with the community, playing Christmas carols at the local mall, playing at the school's faculty Christmas party, and playing for elementary school students.

The orchestra performed at many fund-raisers in order to get money for class trips to New York or charter buses to get to competitions in places such as New Jersey. Sophomore CiCi DeJesus said, "Orchestra is so much fun! It's a time where I can be with friends and do something I love."

The students worked hard under the conduction of their teacher, Ms. Thiele. Though she was tough and hard-core when it came to playing, she put a sassy swing into learning music. Class after class students repeatedly practiced songs to perform at the Winter Concert where they were able to stupefy the audience the night of their performance. All their hard work reflected through their melodic tones. Parents proudly held cameras and camcorders to capture the memorable moment.

Through beautiful music and wonderful talents the orchestra reached out to the student body, faculty, and community. The alleviating sounds brought people together and warmed feelings. The orchestra strived to perform with perfection while doing something they have a passion for.

The Photography Club was started in 2006 by two students, Paige Pederzani and Brittney Justice. When asked about the club Justice commented, "We don't take myspace pictures." The club met every Tuesday after school under the direction of Ms. Breen, the school's photography teacher. Despite the club's success the members had a difficult beginning. With the expenses of film, paper, and chemicals, the founders were forced to find money outside of the school for the production of their artwork.

Anyone with a passion for photography is welcomed to join, during the first couple weeks of school witty posters could be found in almost every hallway of the school. Most of the time was spent in the dark room developing black and white prints. Students were free to photograph subjects of their choice without worrying about meeting school credentials. Whoever participated in the club was able to capture their unique perspective of the world. "The Photography Club is a chance for students to explore alternative as well as traditional processes," commented Ms. Breen.

Having the knowledge gained in the Robotics Team is both rewarding and challenging. It teaches the students to expand their creativity with the use of engineering and math skills. They met at least every Tuesday after school in the Technology Department.

"I've been in the club for a of couple years now and this year we have grown so much. We pushed ourselves to complete our robot by the specifications and the time limits placed on us," commented senior Julie Lim.

The purpose of the program was to build a robot that could complete an assigned task set by the FIRST Robotics Comission. After completion they have a chance to win some awards and recieve recognition. This year's Robot, M-Cat, was built on the same base as last year's Robo-cat. M-Cat will have to complete a challenge called the 'Rack n' Roll.'

This year the team successfully accomplished their robot with only a few bumps along the way. Yet, with the teamwork and cooperation they learned they will be able to complete projects attempted outside of school. They had reached their goal and were proud to recieve the recognition.

Helping Battlefield, One Step at a Time

Each SCA position required the student body, at the end of the year, to vote from the nominees for their favorite choice. Nominees had to first be qualified and then they could sign up for candidacy. The nominee who won the majority of votes was elected for the position. Once the group of candidates was selected, the student body had their own group of successful, committed students for the SCA. "Every member of the SCA is so dedicated to their position. We are also very lucky to have so many dedicated extra workers. This year has been succesful because of the hard work and effort shown by the members of SCA and Mr. Schelzo," stated sophomore Ryan Boone.

Just because one is not a part of the SCA does not mean other students' voices are not heard. There are homeroom delegates who represent their classmates and provide ideas based on what their homeroom wants. These delegates keep the homerooms updated on what is currently being discussed in the SCA meetings. "In the SCA, we work hard to make sure to get the student body's opinion across," sophomore Courtney Liddle commented. SCA helped organize events such as Homecoming, several pep rallies, and Prom. "I enjoy the fact that we can organize events and activities for students and the school," said junior Melissa Land. Foreign Affairs

Model United Nations is a club for those interested in the issues affecting the modern world. In Model UN, each member is given the opportunity to choose a country to represent. The member then becomes a delegate from that country and studies the culture, religion, society, government, and ideology common to their specific country. They then use that information at monthly conferences to debate issues which currently affect the world. The delegates are told in advance what issues will be discussed at the conference, and are given enough time to gather arguments on their country's views on such issues. At the conference, delegates work together to develop resolutions to the issues discussed. These resolutions are often compromises between various delegates with opposing views. Junior Aaron Blair said, 'Model UN is beneficial in that it teaches members to look at world issues in a serious, informed, and diplomatic manner.' Often, members choose countries with world views different from their own, allowing them to see a perspective on a world issue that they had never considered before. Finally, Model UN teaches members about the geography, politics, and culture of foreign countries, increasing their knowledge of the world around them.

Mysteries of History

Have you ever time-traveled to the past? Stepping into history class was like stepping into a time capsule. During an hour and 30 minutes, students took a journey to the past. They took a ride on the Mayflower, met Pocahontas, and invented the cotton gin. Students plunged into World War II and discovered the Holocaust- but this was only the beginning. History allowed students to look into the past and into the present. Students in every grade explored world history, world geography, United States and Virginia History, and even United States government. Junior Billy Knarr commented, "History is interesting because Ms. Miles is an amazing teacher. Her teaching methods are really effective."

Many students who take Advanced Placement history courses knew that the classes would be challenging. Senior Daniel Blair commented on A.P. Government, "It is a very demanding course. We prepared all year for the We the People event in Charlottesville this year."

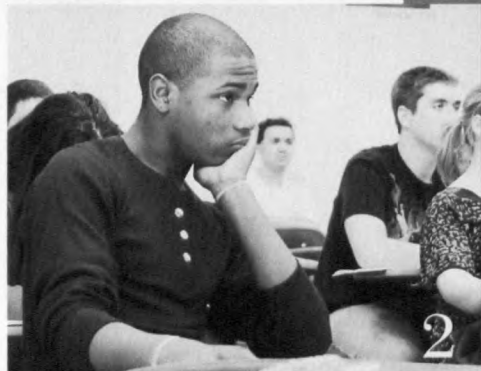

Most students agreed that their teachers were the link between learning an event and actually understanding an event. Sophomore Korbin Doss commented, "My history teacher, Mr. Rohrbach, is awesome. He makes class interesting and it goes by so much faster."

1. Senior Shanice Coleman, a ChamberChoir member, joined the Tri-M group this year.
2. The Tri-M Music Honor Society posts all of rules and regulations on the board.
3. Senior Lora Robinson conducts the Tri-M Club.

Just Like Music

Ranging from the best to the best, chorus and band students from grades 9-12 gathered together to share their ideas, skills, and abilities for their one love-music. The National Music Honor Society, headed by Ms. Gregory and the president Megan Seagears, including the chorus and band students exchanged ideas on upcoming chorus events such as the Pyramid Concert, where all the chorus students sang with elementary students. The Spring Concert was another highlight of Tri-M's journey throughout the year. Members of Tri-M had monthly meetings where they discussed their passion for singing and contributed their thoughts for future chorus-sponsored events. Achieving outstanding grades and keeping a well-rounded schedule fit the qualifications of a perfect Tri-M member.

Becoming a National Music Honor Society Member takes hard work and dedication. Attending meetings monthly helps the musically inclined members prepare for upcoming shows and events. With all the hard work, dedication, perseverance, and willpower of the Tri-M members, the music events and concerts have been a joy to attend and watch as the chorus students show off their talents and abilities. Becoming a Tri-M member is not an easy task but staying after school and practicing for hours on end helped the chorus and band students move another step closer to their goal.

4. Tri-M members laugh and giggle to warm up their voice for a good day of practice.

5. All members singing in sync.

6. Seniors Sarah Kim, Lauren Brewer, Megan Seagears, Tasha Nadasti, Shanice Coleman, and junior Melissa Land listened intently and awaited instructions to discuss among other Tri-M members.

These Memories

With one goal in mind- creating and publishing the school's yearbook, the Lynx Staff had yet another successful year. Though there were numerous setbacks and obstacles, they made it through with the help of their new teacher, Mr. Fitzgerald and the senior editors- Katelyn Crouse, Kacey Colvin, and Dana McManamon. Only in their third year, the staff said goodbye to their previous teacher, Ms. Bailey, and welcomed Mr. Fitzgerald as their new advisor.

For the third volume of the yearbook, three seniors were appointed as editors: Katelyn Crouse as the Editor-in-Chief, Kacey Colvin as the Financial Advisor and Assistant Editor, and Dana McManamon as the Design Editor.

The yearbook is responsible for covering all of Battlefield's events- not only capturing them on camera but on paper as well. Class periods consisted of designing spreads, taking photographs, writing copy, and of course editing. Missing a deadline, making a typo on a spread, or misplacing copy are more than just a grade to these students. The repercussions of these mistakes carry on for years to come, forever printed in the yearbooks on the students shelves come June.

Mr. Fitzgerald commented, "The students put their hearts into these pages. What more can an advisor ask for? This book is a source for both pride in our school and an incomparable respect for what these students can accomplish when they set goals and have the motivation to achieve them."

Editors

Seniors Kacey Colvin, Katelyn Crouse, and Dana McManamon worked together as editors of the third volume of the Lynx. Crouse as the Editor in Chief, Colvin as the Financial Advisor and Assistant Editor and McManamon as Design Editor.

1. Senior Bo-Ram Lim, junior Nora Hassan, and junior Amanda Mayes finish their assigned spreads and fix mistakes.
2. Senior Zach Ward asks Mr. Fitzgerald to look over and to revise the varsity boys basketball spread.
3. Junior Zach McCarthy spell checks the sports section.
4. Junior Alex Fredericks helps edit a spread on deadline day.

Maybe if we want it bad enough we can make it better than it ever was.

5. Sophomore Claire Papp discusses the Health/P.E. spread with Mr. Fitzgerald.

6. Senior Joyce Min edits the proof of a sports page during fourth block.

7. Junior Lauren Butler concentrates on writing copy as the other students actively discuss spreads.

The Lynx

The Playlist of the Day...

For each event/moment/location/memory in life, there was an artist and song that could accurately depict the mood and setting. The same came in school, and as we dropped our backpacks on the tiled floor and chit-chatted until the bell rang, we had that undying song stuck in our head. Like music, each class has a genre, a 'feeling'. So what was your soundtrack of the day? We asked around, and here's what we got.

Name: Mr. Lem
Grade: English Teacher
Favorite Artist:
U2
Fun Fact: I have crawled through an air vent (at The Spy Museum in DC).

Dave Matthews
Band

Lionel Richie

Michael W.
Smith
U2

U2

Alphaville

Pd. 1 AP English 12
Under the Table and Dreaming by Dave Matthews Band because I'm not really sure who is awake, and most of them are dreaming of the future.

Pre-AP English 9
Dancing on the Ceiling by Lionel Richie because if they could they would be "dancing on the ceiling."

Pre-AP English 9
Friends by Michael W. Smith because there are lots of friends in that class.

AP English 12
Beautiful Day by U2 because it's a mix of stress and "beautiful days" of academic and athletic excellence.

AP English 12
Forever Young by Alphaville because the class is always young at heart it seems.

Name: Lauren Brewer
Grade: 12
Favorite Artist:
Fall Out Boy
Fun Fact: I have two middle names.

Pd. 1 AP Government

Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better by Irving Berlin helps me through AP Government because Mr. Shelzo is always disappointed with our answers. We just can't measure up to his knowledge.

Irving
Berlin

Pd. 3 AP Spanish

Lean on Me by Bill Withers is a song that relates with AP Spanish because Ms. Byers is our teacher as well as our friend. She needs us as much as we need her.

Bill
Withers

Pd. 2 Adv. Fashion Marketing

During my marketing class Mrs. Smith always plays the song A Public Affair by Jessica Simpson so everytime I think of that class the lyrics always pop into my head.

Jessica
Simpson

Pd. 4 Biology II

Walking back from lunch to class I think of Sexyback by Justin Timberlake because everyone in my class is very confident, especially the frogs.

Justin Timberlake

Pd. 5 AP English

A, B, C, it's easy as 1, 2, 3. English for me comes easily. I adore my teacher, Mr. Lem, and the people in my class are so much fun.

Jackson 5

Name: Mike Chapman
 Grade: 10
 Favorite Artist:
 Saliva
 Fun Fact: He is a dedicated fan of professional wrestling.

3 Days Grace

Pd. 2 PE

Riot by Three Days Grace would probably best describe that class because we just talk and sometimes it gets out of hand.

Saliva

Pd. 1 Biology

Click Click Boom by Saliva because we do a lot of labs in the class. Some of them involve chemicals that can explode, literally.

Yung Joc

Pd. 5 Geometry

I Know by Yung Joc because everything in that class is easy and it's pretty much common sense so we already know it.

Eminem

Pd. 7 World Geography

Just Lose It by Eminem because that class can get so incredibly boring sometimes you just want to lose it – scream because you think you may actually lose it.

Run DMC

Pd. 3 Pre-AP English

It's Tricky by Run DMC because there are so many different aspects of English that it's hard to keep up. That makes it all ten times harder.

Name: Amy Pinilis
 Grade: 11
 Favorite Artist:
 Rascal Flatts
 Fun Fact: I do a 'flex my butt' workout during class.

Joseph Arthur

Pd. 3 Yearbook

I think of the song Honey in the Moon by Joseph Arthur because it's such a chill song which relates to my yearbook class because it's a very relaxed environment.

American Hi-Fi

Pd. 4 Art III

Flavor of The Week by American Hi-Fi is the best song for art class because myspace John has a new flavor every week. Everyone in that class always talks about their current love lives.

Pussycat Dolls

Pd. 5 Fashion Marketing

Fashion makes me think of Beep by the Pussycat Dolls because it's an up-beat song and it is safe to say I have a class full of girls who could be future pop idols.

Kottonmouth Kings

Pd. 6 Chemistry

Tangerine Sky by Kottonmouth Kings is the best song for chemistry because sometimes I tend to daze off during this period and I sing this song in my head.

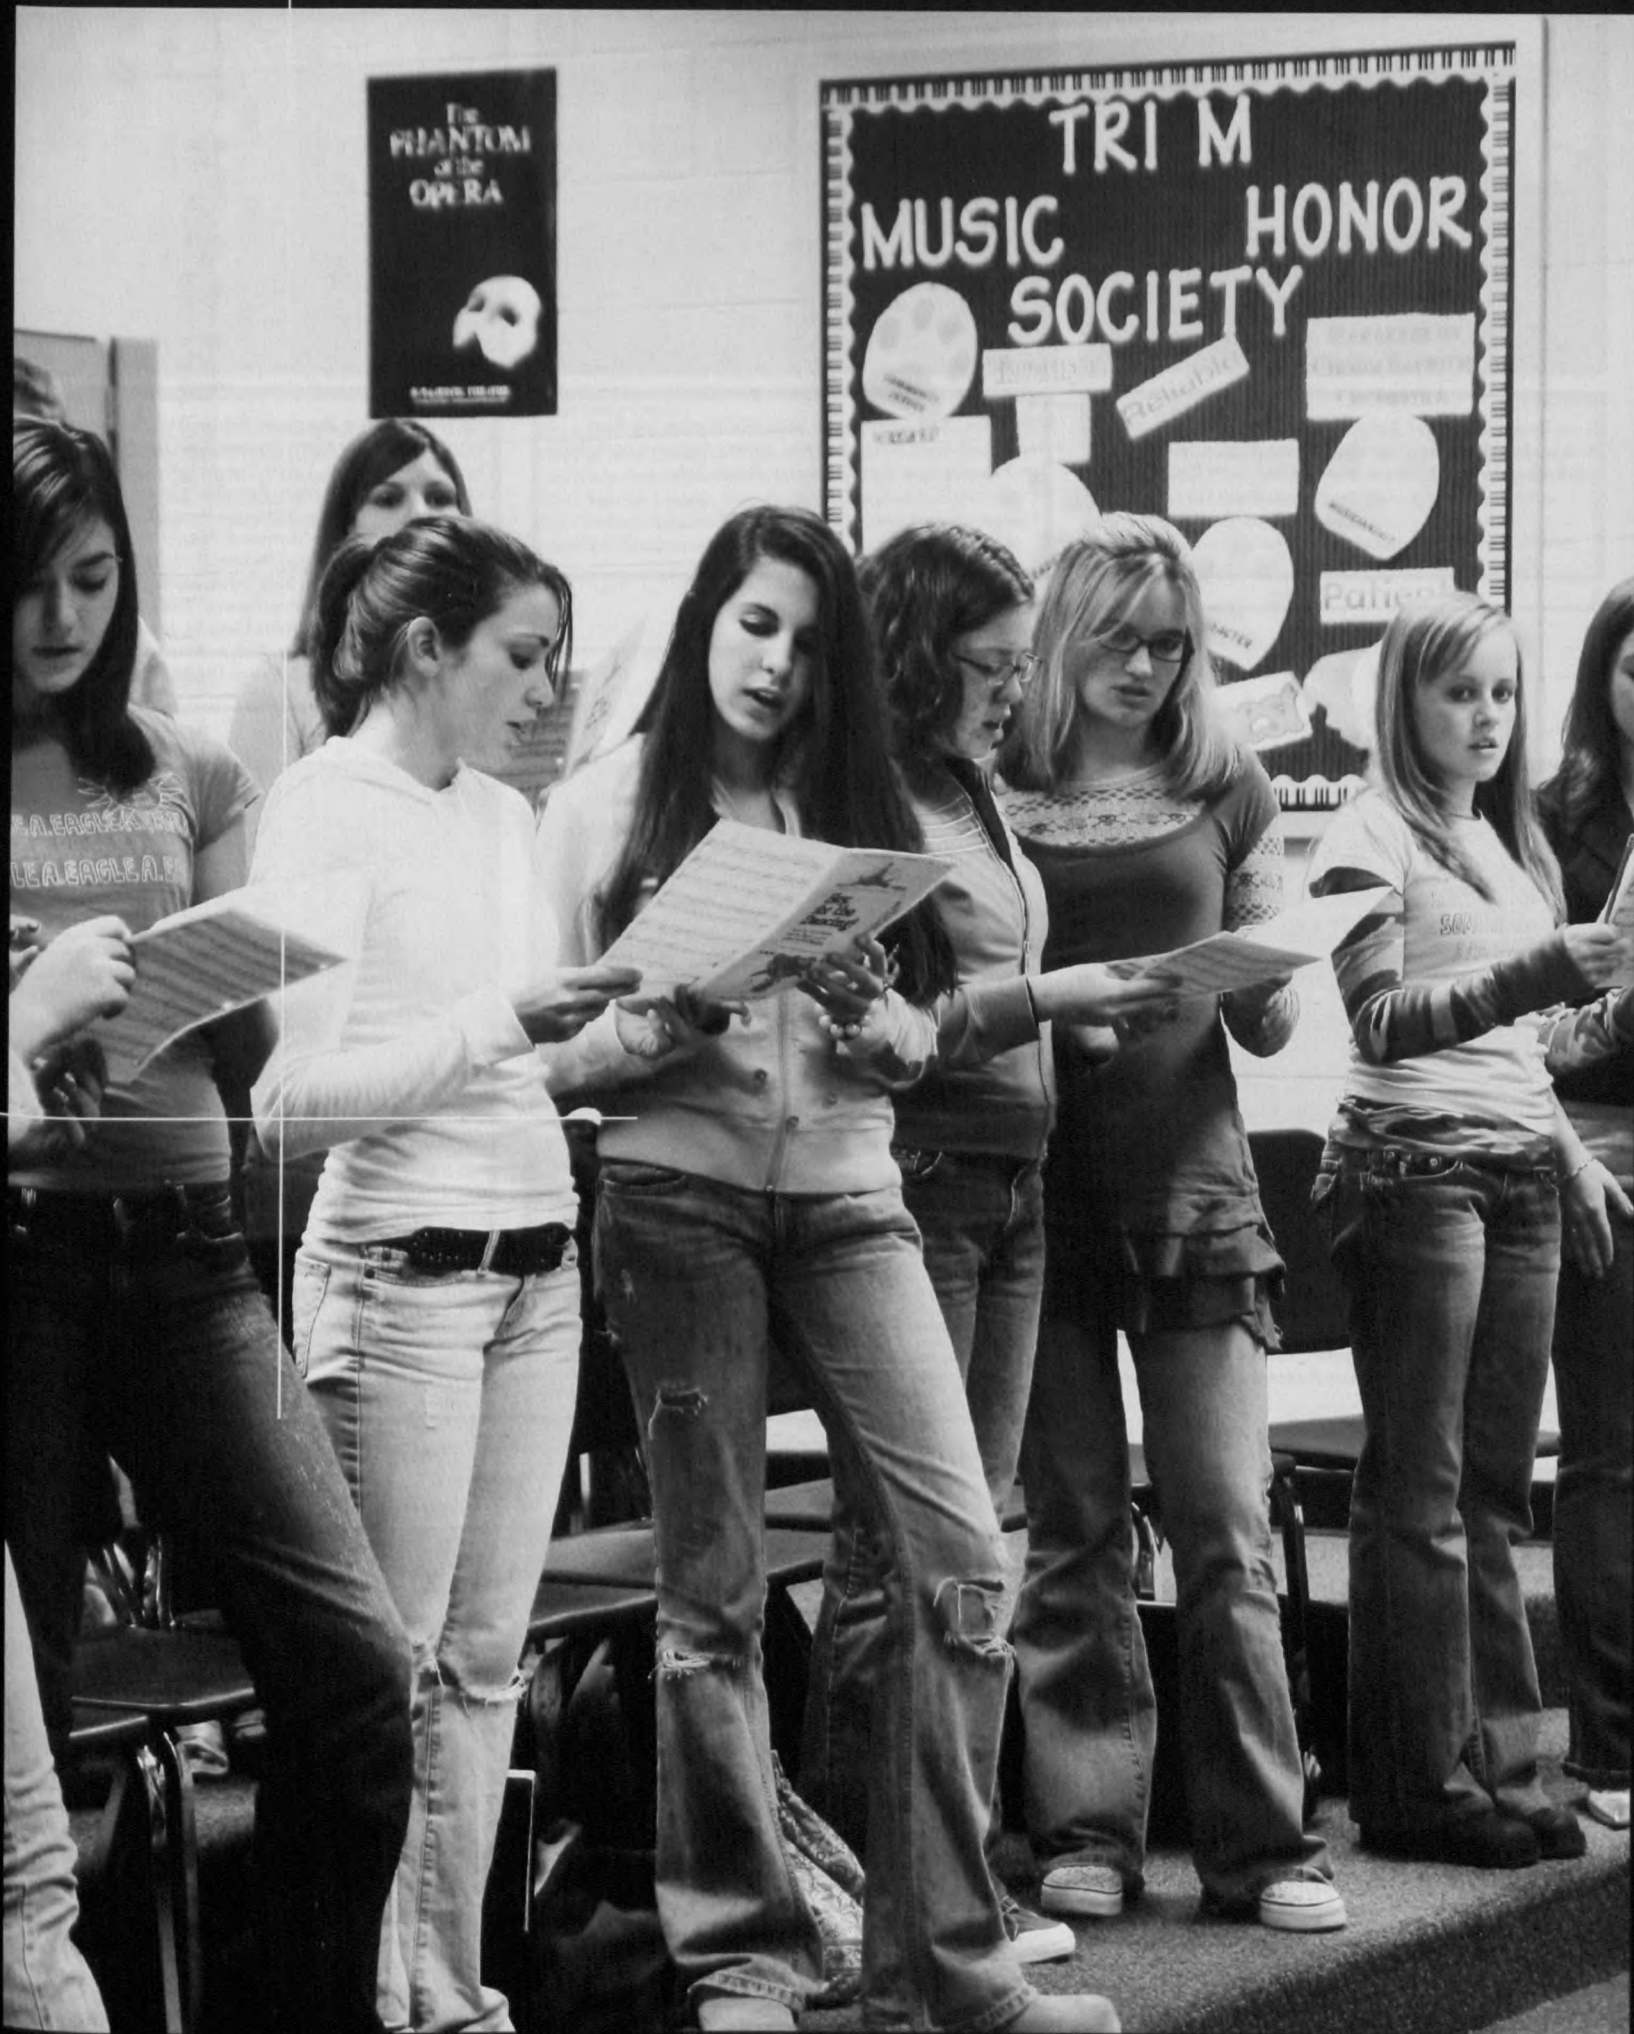

Three 6 Mafia

Pd. 7 Algebra II

Algebra II is a very entertaining class with Mr. Homan and certain male students. It is a class full of conceited boys therefore it makes me think of the song Poppin' My Collar by Three 6 Mafia.

*I think I'll take a moment, celebrate my age
The ending of an era and the turning of a page
Now it's time to focus in on where I go from here.*

When you were about 8, you dreamed about playing professional soccer. You have worked very hard developing soccer skills all the while playing baseball, basketball and finally, football. You give all you have to your sports, your friends and to your family. You do nothing halfway or without heart. Integrity, strong character, and devotion are powerful personality traits you have developed. You will lean on these as you move through your life. They will be the foundation of who you become. We are all blessed to be a part of your life, you give us joy and make us so very proud. We pray for your dreams to come true and for you to be very happy in life.

The minute we laid eyes on you
We saw your sweet disposition
And as you grew, "a heart of gold"
Was everyone's description.
Your loving gentleness, your faith in God
Was clear right from the start
You were happy and enthusiastic
The pride and joy of our hearts.
You often taught us how to be
More content and more forgiving
Yet we should have been teaching you
The Christian way of living.
And as we've prayed and watched you grow
Into the man you have become
God's hand is on you in all things
And we're proud to have you for our son.

Welcome!

Our goal at Park Valley Church is to be a place where you feel welcomed and at home. At PVC, we're not concerned with the clothes you wear, our concern is that you receive life-changing answers from God's Word. Before the service, refreshments are provided to give people a chance to get to know each other. During the service, you'll enjoy our upbeat music and practical preaching from the Word of God. Why not try Park Valley this Sunday? We think you'll be glad you did!

End of Track...

So go forth unto this world, and spread the music. Nod your head, throw your fists into the air like a madman, and sing until your lungs give out. Tap your foot to the same beat as your neighbor, listen to a song your mom thinks is "hip". Appreciate the self expression in each song, even if it doesn't reflect your opinion. Lyrics are more than your away message, they are your Myspace profile, your freedom. Show a friend a new song, hope that one note makes them tingle just like it does for you. Expand your mind, write, flourish, appreciate that words have become so powerful they can change a life.

Appreciate that the power of music has existed through the vibrant passion of the Harlem Renaissance... through hundreds of thousands of lost teenagers lathered in mud at Woodstock...through the 1981 MTV debut...

through the invention of the ipod...

and will continue to exist so long as creativity remains a crucial part of our society and a wonderful part of life.

*In the years to come
Will you think about these moments that we shared
In the years to come
Are you gonna think it over
And how we lived each day with no regrets*
